Victims of Sea Reach Last Harbor

Bodies of three Vancouver fishermen, lost when their 55-foot fish boat Westerner foundered in Friday's storm, were brought to Victoria last night for identification. A fourth member of Westerner's crew is missing. Here RCMP officers and RCAF crewmen bring one of dead ashore from crash boat which went to wreck on Saturna Island yesterday, about 15 miles east of Sidney.

Fourth Man Missing

Three Fishermen Perish In Storm-Wrecked Seiner

Grisly Discovery On Saturna Island

Three Vancouver fishermen, who died apparently while seeking shelter from the worst November storm on the B.C. coast in 44 years, were found yesterday in the ice-shrouded wreckage of their 55-foot seiner on Saturna Island.

A fourth man, believed to be from Vancouver, is still missing.

The three bodies were found in the flooded forward hold of the Westerner, which the seas had pushed onto a wedge of rocks on the storm-swept northeastern shore of the island, one mile south of Boat pass. RCMP brought the bodies here.

Although identification was impossible last night, reports from Vancouver said the missing men were Marian Govarchin, the 54-year-old owner of the vessel; Bob Suica, about 60; Joe Martinic and Ed Jones.

ANOTHER VICTIM

A few hours after the storm broke Friday, body of Masaichi Mukuyana, 57-year-old Japanese fisherman of Surrey, was found in his swamped boat off Ladner.

The Westerner was sighted at 9.30 a.m. yesterday by Jim Money and Don Bellamy, Saturna Island residents, who were going to their road construction jobs.

They teamed with other civilians, an RCMP constable and RCAF personnel in the Gulf islands crashboat to set up planks so they could board the vessel.

Deck of the seiner was coated with ice. Wheelhouse and hull were stove in. Interior of the vessel was filled with water and smashed timbers.

A piece of seaweed on the mast indicated the boat may have overturned in heavy seas, drowning the three men inside and sweeping the man at the wheel to his death. Later, the Westerner apparently righted itself.

The Westerner usually carries a crew of six. When caught in Georgia strait by the storm, she was likely headed for shelter beyond Active Pass.

The air force crashboat and a vessel owned by B.C. Packers, with whom Mr. Govorchin was affiliated, will go to the scene today to continue the search for the fourth body.

A skiff located by an RCAF Canso aircraft on Tumbo Island, near the scene of the wreck, is believed to be from the Westerner.

It was learned that the ship's lights were on, the clutch was engaged and the radio was tuned to the distress band. Clothing worn by the men indicated the tragedy occurred at night.

Last of the bodies was removed after four hours of probing through the wreckage and the crash boat brought the bodies to Sidney. They were later brought here.

Arrangements are in the hands of Sands' Funeral Home, Sidney. An inquest will be held.

MISSING MAN SAFE

Meanwhile, Victoria fisherman Mervin Reid of Discovery Island and his 32-foot gillnetter Kenneth, given up for lost in the storm, turned up safely at Patos Island light station in Juan de Fuca Strait. A U.S. Coast Guard vessel will tow the Kenneth to Bellingham tomorrow.

Fires and traffic accidents blamed on the cold wave on the B.C. Mainland took nine other lives and left 18 persons homeless.

Area Police Seek Hit-Run Driver

Police of the metropolitan area were hunting last night for a hit-and-run driver who left a badly injured boy lying on the roadside.

James Isacson, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Isacson, Millstream road, was hit about 5.30 p.m. last night on the Island highway near Colwood corner.

The boy was riding his bicycle towards Colwood corner with a load of groceries when he was struck.

Two minutes later an RCMP patrol car noticed the boy sprawled on the roadway.

He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital with a leg fracture, where his condition at midnight was reported as good.

Snow-Laden but Warmer

Cold Wave Could Break Tomorrow As New Pacific Storm Moves In

Victoria's worst November cold wave since the weather office began to keep records 56 years ago may break tomorrow.

A "very active" storm coming from the Gulf of Alaska should bring snow flurries and warmer temperatures to the north B.C. coast this morning, to the west coast of Vancouver Island this afternoon, and possibly to Victoria tonight and tomorrow.

That would be none too soon for battered citizens who, since temperatures dropped Friday, have gone to city hospitals in record numbers or spent most of their time and money worrying and working on frozen automobiles.

Victoria weather forecaster William Mackie said "about a storm a day" is coming from the north Pacific, but all have passed south of here. New one may bring six or eight inches of snow to the north coast, with serious icing, but "it looks as if it will break the cold wave."

"LOOKS GOOD"

"We'll know the effect on the south coast Tuesday," he said last night. "But it looks quite good."

Mr. Mackie said Victoria went through five-day November cold waves in 1900 and 1911, but temperatures seldom dropped below 20 degrees. Minimum readings since Friday have been 12.5 degrees Saturday, 14.7 Sunday, 12.8 yesterday and a forecast record low of 12 this morning.

It was an unofficial six above at Langford last night. All-time low temperature here was 6.4 degrees in February, 1950.

In the Pacific, 900 miles west-northwest of Victoria, temperatures at the weathership have varied little from 45 degrees, as a result of the passing storms.

Nurses in emergency wards of city hospitals stopped trying to keep a running count of the number of injuries suffered in "cold wave" accidents, most of them falls on icy sidewalks.

FRACTURES, FROSTBITE

Between Friday morning and last night, approximately 75 persons had been treated for fractured legs, arms and shoulders; frostbite, burns to face or hands from overheated stoves, head cuts, and lacerations and bruises.

Six children were cut in sleighing accidents. In most cases sleighs ran into cars. One boy needed 17 stitches to close a head cut.

Delivery delays of fuel dealers lengthened, and plumbers worked sometimes around the clock. Householders were advised to leave a tap slightly open to avert frozen pipes.

As private citizens reported thermometer readings as low as 4 degrees Sunday, Esquimalt firemen flooded the lacrosse box near Fraser street hall for a skating rink.

Sections of the Inner harbor, Panama flats and other areas were icy, but all police forces said conditions were "far too dangerous for skating," while adding that no hills had been blocked off for sleighing.

Acting city engineer J. C. Garnett reminded property owners that they are responsible for clearing ice from sidewalks in front of their businesses or homes.

He recommended bulk salt or powdered rock salt after clearing. His standing crews covered all major roads and usual trouble spots with more than 100 cubic yards of clean, washed sand, being used for the first time.

Although it becomes glazed over and seems to disappear, Mr. Garnett said, it works satisfactorily. Saanich crews spread 300 yards of sand; Oak Bay workers more than 60 yards.

All main roads on the Island are sanded and open to traffic, although the Malahat is still ice-soaked. Patricia Bay highway from Keating hill to Royal Oak was described as "very tricky."

Two schools were closed at Nanaimo as up-Island temperatures fell to 8 degrees and light snow fell on many areas. On the mainland, three Fraser valley schools were closed.

The "big freeze" may destroy 1,000 tons of potatoes, 100 tons of turnips and 5,500 tons of carrots in the Fraser valley, causing temporary shortages. Officials expected trouble in Okanagan soft fruit orchards.

Low temperature of 10 at Vancouver was a November record, but well above the all-time minimum of zero there Jan. 14, 1950. Low at Kelowna was four below zero, lowest in 55 years.

'Big Business'

Saanich Growth May Boost Staff

A plan to reorganize Saanich municipal staff, creating a permanent comptroller-treasurer and waterworks engineer, will be put before council in January.

Coun. George Austin proposed last night that municipal clerk John Tribe be promoted to the position of comptroller-treasurer, assistant clerk Gordon Hayward be made municipal clerk and a new assistant be hired.

Coun. S. W. Brock said in addition the municipality should hire a full-time waterworks engineer, and place the responsibility for subdivision in the hands of the Capital Region Planning Board "where it belongs."

Both councillors felt Saanich's growth warranted expansion of the staff because it was now "big business."

Reeve Joseph Casey suggested no changes be made until January. Coun. Austin will make a notice of motion for the reorganization to be put before the new 1956 council.

Catholic Women Start Purifying Newsstands

TORONTO (CP)—The Catholic Women's League drive to purify Ontario newsstands got under way Monday amid mixed reaction.

The league said most newsdealers were co-operative and encouraging. Authors were highly critical, distributors' spokesmen were critical, and other opinions ranged from misgiving to approval.

About 1,000 specially-trained observers, mostly housewives, started out to check dealers' books and periodicals against a list of 300 books blacklisted by the National Organization of Decent Literature of Chicago.

Any listed book which an observer found on a newsstand was pointed out to the dealer and he was asked to return it to the distributor.

Mrs. W. J. McDonald, league publicity convener, said:

"Most of our people are treated with courtesy. Most dealers agreed with our campaign and asked for a list."

"MISGUIDED," SAYS AUTHOR

But two Toronto authors criticized the drive.

Author Lister Sinclair said: "It's impertinent."

Author Morley Callaghan said:

"They're terribly misguided . . . Not one woman in 10,000 will have any personal awareness of the thing she is damning. Any book could be put on her secret list and she would know nothing about it. She would condemn it on someone else's word."

Sinclair said: "They are entitled not to read books if they don't like them, or they may advise others not to read them. But they are not entitled to prevent other people from reading them.

Enjoys Good Show

Dog Snubs TV, Takes In Movie

HENDON, Eng. (Reuters)—Dental surgeon H. R. Edwards, thought his boxer dog Bruce, would stay in at night if there was a good TV show.

But Bruce disappeared several times lately and didn't return for hours, missing all his favorite shows.

The local movie manager explained Monday. The four-legged entertainment - seeker often eases inside the movie house and sits in the aisle to watch a double feature.

"Maybe it's easier on his eyes than television," he suggested.

Investigation Urged

Church-State Split May Be House Issue

LONDON (Reuters) — Pressure mounted Monday night in Britain for an investigation into possible separation of church and state.

A clergyman speaking in St. Paul's Cathedral here Sunday, questioned the right of British prime ministers, who need not even be Christians, to have a decisive voice in the nomination of Church of England bishops.

Two newspapers of different political affiliations applauded Canon George L. Lloyd for proposing the freeing of the church from state controls.

AIRED IN PARLIAMENT

The entire problem may come before Parliament today. Labor member Stephen Swingler said he will ask Prime Minister Eden to set up a commission to investigate church-state relations and the question of whether Britain should continue to have a state church.

The problems created by an established church were dramatically pinpointed by Princess Margaret's decision not to wed Group Capt. Peter Townsend in view of the church's attitude to his divorce.

Swingler wants to know from the government how far the church's status as a state institution accords with the ideals and desires of the majority of the British people.

Canon Lloyd provided new ammunition to the explosive controversy in questioning the role of prime ministers in church matters.

In accord with constitutional practice, the sovereign, head of the church, nominates bishops of the Church of England on the advice of the prime minister.

IN DELICATE POSITION

This places Eden in a delicate position since he, like Townsend, was the "innocent party" of a divorce. Eden wed his second wife, Clarissa, niece of Sir Winston Churchill, in a civil ceremony.

Yet, if the question of disestablishing the Church of England from the state ever arose, Eden would, as Queen Elizabeth's first minister, be in the position of having to advise her what to do. This would be possibly in the face of opposing views from the primate of all England, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

The Star, a Liberal London evening newspaper, declared: "We are glad the canon has given the church a lead. We shall be even more pleased if the Archbishop of Canterbury comes out in his support."

Disestablishment is the only logical outcome, The Star said, if the church cannot make its laws conform to those of the state.

Africa Cuts Final Tie With UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—South Africa cut its final tie with the 10th UN General Assembly Monday in protest against a UN decision to hear Rev. Michael Scott.

Scott is an Anglican missionary who has been barred since 1951 from the Territory of Southwest Africa by a ruling of the South African government. The trusteeship committee of the assembly last week voted to hear him give evidence about Southwest Africa, over which South Africa was given control originally under a League of Nations mandate.

South Africa recalled its delegation from the assembly last week because of a vote by the special political committee to continue an investigation into South African race policies.

Teapot Tempest Costly

CALGARY (CP)—Thomas Lee was fined $300 and costs in police court Monday after police earlier discovered his novel system of delivering bootleg liquor.

He served it in a teapot in his cafe. Police arrested him Monday morning. Evidence was he charged $1 a bottle for beer served this way.

Russia Rings Down Solid Iron Curtain To Keep Out Ideas

By DANIEL de LUCE

GENEVA (AP) — Foreign Minister Molotov announced Monday Russia's refusal to remove the Iron Curtain barring free exchange of ideas with the West.

The Russian accused the three Western foreign ministers of submitting proposals that would open his country to "freedom for war propaganda . . . freedom for unrestricted subversive propaganda."

In tough language, Molotov gave the Western ministers to understand that the barriers of the Soviet bloc will long continue, regardless of relaxation of East-West tensions.

"We do not conceal the fact," he said, "that in the Soviet Union, neither before nor hereafter, will such freedom for the exchange of ideas be afforded which would, in fact, represent freedom for the propaganda of war and misanthropic propaganda of atomic attack.

"Nor can we agree, of course, to the so-called freedom for the exchange of persons, which would enable various dregs of society to conduct unrestricted subversive activity in the countries of socialism and democracy, although, as we know, many millions of dollars are being spent for these purposes."

U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, speaking after Molotov, warned the Russians against dumping their surplus Second World War arms on world markets. At the same time, he accused them of being afraid to permit contact between the Soviet people and the West.

Stunned by Molotov's refusal to permit a free flow of news and ideas across the Iron Curtain, Dulles said the Soviets fear their totalitarian system would be undermined if their people knew of the liberty and economic abundance in free nations.

The Soviet foreign minister counter-attacked with a warning to the West to quit "meddling" in Russia's internal affairs.

This brought forth a pointed warning from Dulles that Moscow's "persistent campaign which distorts the minds of the Russian" people is a danger to peace with the West.

Cypriots Fire Rocks At British Soldiers

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters) — Men of a mountain village advanced behind a "wall of women" to stone British commandos Monday in one of the worst days of island-wide rioting since the Greek Cypriots' struggle for union with Greece began.

At the entrance to Vouni village in central Cyprus a crowd of women met the commandos with screams, curses and a shower of stones. Men massed behind them also were flinging stones.

The struggle was decided by tear gas. Military authorities clamped a rigorous house curfew on the village.

A 40-year-old woman, injured by tear gas shell splinters, was taken to Limassol hospital, 20 miles away. Nine other villagers, mostly women, were injured by tear gas shells.

Some of the incidents were believed to have been sparked by the rejection Saturday of an appeal by Michael Karaolis, 22, sentenced to death for the murder of a Nicosia policeman.

In Nicosia, students with a vanguard of screaming girls in school uniforms converged on police and troops surrounding a secondary school. Hiding behind trees and boulders around the building, the youngsters pitched stones and bottles at the troops and police.

Tear gas again came into play.

'Captive Audience' Suit

Keep Preachers Out of Jail Convict Demands in Court

SEATTLE (AP)—A unique trial in which a county jail prisoner contends a "captive audience" of prisoners should not have to listen to religious services opened in court here Monday.

The suit was instituted by William Harvey Rhea, a 35-year-old roofer serving a year's sentence for vagrancy and assault, and is against 19 religious organizations.

Rhea is seeking to require the King county sheriff and the jail superintendent to enforce a rule which limits religious services to the jail's chapel.

The religious groups are asking that the court prohibit jail officials from interfering with the services they now conduct in jail corridors.

Rhea said he got headaches and became nervous after groups of religious workers had conducted hour-long services.

"There is no way we can get away," Rhea said. "There is no place to go. I believe in God. I believe that when the time comes, I can do it (be saved) myself, and only myself."

Sudbury Starts Trip

Island Sovereign Ready To Start Big Salvage Tow

Island Tug & Barge Ltd. tug Island Sovereign this afternoon will begin the second major salvage tow in four days of vessels disabled in the Pacific.

Sovereign will tow the Greek freighter Adamas, which radioed early yesterday from 800 miles west of Swiftsure Lightship that she had only enough fuel to last until noon today.

Tug and freighter were converging at 24 knots at last word yesterday. They are expected to reach Victoria late this week, when Adamas will proceed with original plans to dock at Esquimalt for minor repairs. She was proceeding here in ballast.

Tug Sudbury, which put a tow line aboard the disabled Greek freighter Makedonia Friday, is not expected to reach Vancouver for almost three weeks. Tow is now less than 300 miles from Adak Island in the Aleutians, where doubled-up long-distance towing gear will be put into place.

Company officials said the return trip will be hazardous because of the vast stretches of open water.

"They've got nothing but 600 miles of water, with no ports around them," said Arthur Elworthy, managing director.

The job, which will have taken more than a month when it is finished, was undertaken on a "salvage award basis," Mr. Elworthy said.

Conservationists File Claim To Prevent Buttle Raising

Conservationists filed a statement of claim in Vancouver yesterday in a move to obtain an injunction restraining the attorney general of B.C. and the B.C. Power Commission from raising the water level of Buttle lake and Elk river in Strathcona park.

Under authority of the comptroller of water rights, [illegible] is already proceeding with the further damming of the Campbell river system, which will raise the level of Buttle above its former high water mark by as much as 19 feet.

A main contention of the statement of claim, Eric Charman, one of the complainants, said last night, is that it is implicit in the amendment to the Strathcona Park Act of 1927 that the level of the lake would not be raised above low level—but maintained at or below that level.

STATEMENT FILED

T. G. Norris, QC, counsel for Mr. Charman, a Victoria business man, and Mrs. Virginia Moore, of Long Beach, Calif., filed the statement of claim in supreme court.

Mr. Charman seeks the injunction as "a person who has enjoyed and wishes to continue to enjoy the amenities of the park," while Mrs. Moore is suing as the owner of crown-granted mineral claims on the shore line of Buttle lake.

Mr. Charman and Mrs. Moore asked the supreme court to rule that a provincial order-in-council authorizing the raising of the water level is illegal and invalid.

A similar declaration is sought on a conditional water licence issued by the provincial comptroller of water rights and on a permit granted by the deputy minister of lands.

Pirate Raid Suspected In Mystery

SUVA, Fiji (AP)—Beliefs that the "ghost ship" Joyita may have been attacked by pirates were further substantiated Monday night with the discovery that a sea-cock in the engine room was open.

All gear on the deck had been stripped—even things impossible to use on a raft.

The 70-ton Joyita, a luxury yacht converted to an island trading steamer, disappeared 39 days ago, with 25 persons aboard, on a routine two-day trip from Apia, Samoa, to the Tokelau islands.

On Thursday she was found drifting and waterlogged, 600 miles off course. No one was aboard.

The Joyita was towed here, pumped out and inspected. The hull was not holed, although there was exterior damage.

Experts say pirates may have opened the seacock in a bid to sink the Joyita, but had their plans upset because the half-empty oil drums kept her afloat.

Premier Has No Plans For Vote

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said yesterday no thought had been given to setting a date for the by-election to fill the Vancouver Centre vacancy caused by the sudden death of Social Credit MLA George Moxham.

"It's been quite a shock. I wouldn't even think of a by-election yet," he said.

The premier described Mr. Moxham's death as "a great loss to the Social Credit movement and the government."

The majority of cabinet ministers will attend the funeral in Vancouver today.

One Serious Blaze

Firemen Blame Overstoking For Rash of Weekend Fires

Shivering Victorians poured on the coal over the city's frigid weekend and fire departments have answered 50 alarms since Friday as a result of their enthusiasm.

Firemen blamed most of the fires which have kept them hopping on overstoking, old pipes, overheated pipes too close to woodwork, and open drafts.

Most serious home damage occurred Sunday at the Sidney home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Burdett, 901 Queens.

A smouldering, smoky fire went unnoticed by neighbors while the Burdetts were absent from 3 to 6 p.m.

Mr. Burdett found the damage when he returned to light fires after he and his wife visited relatives only five houses away.

A spark from a fireplace is believed to have set fire to a chesterfield chair. The fire smouldered through the floor and the room furnishings dropped several feet to the ground.

Mr. Burdett extinguished the smouldering remains of fire in the floor. No alarm was turned in.

Smoke damage was extensive throughout the house but no estimate of damage has been made.

CAT SURVIVED

Fluffo, the cat, took refuge in the bathtub and survived.

Yesterday city firemen extinguished a small kitchen fire at 1216 North Park and a minor blaze at 710 Kings from an overheated fireplace. Woodwork about the fireplace was damaged.

Fire on Saturday caused $75,000 damage at Mill Bay when the service station of H. A. Warner was destroyed.

Casual Captive Admits Slaying

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — The FBI said Monday Arthur Ross Brown, 30-year-od ex-convict wanted in connection with a cross-country crime spree, casually admitted the kidnap-slaying of an attractive Kansas City, Mo., housewife.

Brown was captured by FBI agents and San Francisco police early Monday without a struggle. He was found asleep in a stolen car with two loaded pistols at his feet.

An FBI agent who said he questioned the stocky, blond gunman testified at a hearing before U.S. Commissioner Joseph Karesh that Brown said in an off-hand remark he had killed Mrs. Wilma Allen Aug. 4 and dumped her nude body south of Kansas City.

Karesh ordered Brown held in $100,000 bond pending action by Kansas City authorities. He was booked on a charge of transporting a stolen car across the state line.

U.S. Attorney Lloyd Burke said Brown also was wanted for investigation of burglary, attempted murder and assault in Sheridan, Wyo., for the kidnapping of his own wife in Kansas City, and a rape-burglary in San Jose, Calif.

"Four FBI men and four San Francisco policemen found Brown sleeping in the car he was alleged to have stolen in Omaha last week. The FBI said it had been alerted by Brown's family the desperado might try to visit an aunt here. He was found parked half a block from her home.

Mrs. Allen's nude body was found in a field 25 miles from here three days after she disappeared from a fashionable south Kansas City shopping area. She had been shot twice in the back of the head.

The death of the 31-year-old mother of two boys, age nine and 11, touched off the most intensive police effort since the kidnap-slaying of Bobby Greenlease in 1953.

Canadian Prelate Won't See Red Cleric

MONTREAL (BUP) — The head of the Russian Orthodox church in Eastern Canada said Sunday he "certainly would not meet" a representative of the Soviet State Church when he arrives here because "we have nothing in common . . . and nothing to do with each other."

Archbishop Panteleimon was asked to comment on the forthcoming visit of the metropolitan Nikolai, the Soviet prelate. He told a gathering of Montrealers of Russian origin who met yesterday to mark the 38th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution that he denounced the present Soviet regime in the U.S.S.R.

Protesting against the "snare and delusion of co-existence," Archbishop Panteleimon said he had nothing to say about the Soviet prelate's visit because he "was not interested."

Professor F. P. Bohatrichuk of the University of Ottawa told the group "we know that our Bolshevik enemies, with their secret and open friends, will try to present today's meeting as an attempt to interfere with the contemporary policies of the western world."

"They will say it interferes with the so-called Geneva spirit and the wish of the Western world to co-exist with Communism," Bohatrichuk said. "This is a deliberate lie. We are and will remain forever loyal Canadian citizens; we will never break our oath. But we consider it our duty as Canadian citizens to tell the free world about our own experience of 'co-existence' with the Bolsheviks," he added.

Garden Notes

Modest Viola Late Bloomer

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One problem which constantly confronts the owner of a small garden is finding plants which will continue to produce blooms over most of the season.

Not for him the stately delphinium, the graceful peony, or the sturdy iris, with their short period of flowering. He can't afford to allot space to plants which can't pay their rent for more than a few weeks out of the year.

Of all the plants in the book, it seems to me that the modest little viola yields the highest dividends for the space they occupy.

Producing their first flowers even before they leave the cold frame in early April, these little fellows bring a wealth of color into the beds immediately they are planted out, and continue to provide colorful "picture frames" for beds and borders throughout the summer and well into late autumn.

CUTTINGS BEST

Violas can be propagated either from seed or cuttings. Cuttings are the best if you have a few outstanding plants you wish to perpetuate, and such plants will flower earlier than seedlings, but violas from seed take up less space in the cold frame, and seem to be a bit less susceptible to damage from diseases and pests. Moreover, there is always the thrill of the gamble in seeing what you get out of a packet of mixed seed.

Viola cuttings, rooting and wintering in a cold frame, are often lost through the "damping off" disease, caused by stagnant air conditions in the frame. Coddling is fatal, and plenty of fresh air must be given whenever weather conditions permit.

While the frames should be closed every night, they should always be propped open during daylight hours, except when we hit one of four occasional frosty spells, or during fog, which is very bad for violas.

LITTLE WATER

Water should be given sparingly; in fact, if the bed has been given a thorough soaking, you can probably get by until spring without any further watering. If the soil does become too dry during the winter, choose a sunny, airy day, and water early enough in the day so the foliage and the soil surface will be dried off before the frames are closed for the night.

During the winter, it is necessary to keep a constant lookout for signs of viola "lice." This serious pest can be controlled by dusting with one of the modern garden dusts containing Malathion, or by using a smoke or fume cone, which are most handy for small enclosed spaces such as frames.

SLUGS TROUBLESOME

Slugs can be troublesome, too, but are suckers for a few Bug-Getta pellets strewn under the foliage. Damping-off, mildew, and other fungus diseases are controlled by ventilation and hygiene, keeping the plants spaced widely apart, and clearing the beds of withered leaves and debris.

The baby violas can be planted out as soon as the soil can be worked in March or April. They will thrive in almost any kind of soil, but they will perform best in a rich loam a little on the heavy side, and with some leaf mould spaded in.

Big Crowd Sings 'Happy Birthday'

LONDON (AP)—Crowds outside Buckingham Palace Monday sang "happy birthday" to the chubby blond boy who someday will be their king.

Prince Charles smiled and waved but like any little boy on reaching his seventh birthday, he was anxious to get at the ice cream and cake. It turned out to be good, too. French chef Ronald Aubrey baked a special frosted sponge cake decorated with seven candles.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh kept their royal calendars free for the occasion but they might as well not have bothered.

The Queen and duke were little more than onlookers at the festivities. The young prince showed himself in full command and had two dozen of his juvenile friends at the palace to help him celebrate.

The day began early for the young prince who is heir-apparent to the throne.

Charles was up earlier than usual and the first to wish him happy birthday" was his sister, Princess Anne, who proudly handed him her present.

The young prince got presents, too, from "mummy" and "papa" this morning at Windsor Castle where the Royal Family spent the weekend.

Charles had ice cream and cake on his mind and happily set out with Princess Anne for the party at the palace.

A crowd waiting outside serenaded him on arrival. The Queen and duke came a few hours later—just a few minutes before the party got under way.

CCF Leader Suggests Aid For Victims

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial CCF leader Arnold Webster said Monday flood disaster victims on the North Shore are entitled to provincial aid.

In a prepared statement, he said the B.C. government should start an immediate enquiry into damage done to both agricultural land and residential property.

He said such an enquiry would hasten rehabilitation.

"They have been the victims, not of individual neglect, but of social neglect.

"It is clear the public authorities failed to anticipate the effects of denuding heavily wooded hillsides, and to make adequate provision for draining away water from melting snow and heavy rains."

He called for a long range program to guard vulnerable areas from further flooding.

Young Forger Working Off Bad Debt Admits Rigging Bomb To Explode Plane

DENVER (AP) — A 23-year-old convicted Denver forger who was allowed to work off the remainder of a bad - cheque debt in his mother's restaurant after she paid off most of it to keep him out of prison admitted Monday that he rigged the dynamite bomb that blew up a United Air Lines plane, killing the mother and 43 other persons.

The DC-6B plane blew up in the air near Longmont, Colo., 11 minutes after leaving the Denver airport Nov. 1. Sabotage was suspected immediately as witnesses reported the craft exploded in flight.

The federal complaint filed by the FBI accused Graham of placing aboard the plane "a number of sticks of dynamite attached to [illegible] in the form of a bomb."

he and his wife stayed in the airport's coffee shop for about an hour before the plane crash was reported.

One of the victims was Mrs. Alma Winsor of St. John's, Nfld.

Authorities said the son did it for insurance money—a policy he had taken out at the airport before she boarded the plane at Denver, but ironically invalid because she had not signed it.

U.S. attorney Donald E. Kelly said John Gilbert Graham, construction and restaurant worker—termed a playboy by probation officers—had signed a "written admission."

CONSIDER MURDER CHARGE

Graham waived a hearing on a "peacetime sabotage" charge and was jailed when he was unable to supply $100,000 bond.

The sabotage charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine.

Kelly conferred with state prosecutors to consider whether the alim defendant should be turned over to them for prosecution on murder charges, punishable by death in Colorado.

It was the latest of many gruesome plots which have killed dozens of innocent air passengers and fliers as well as the intended victims, in the last six years since the famed Guay case.

On Sept. 9, 1949, 23 were killed when a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane was downed by a time bomb 40 miles from Quebec. Three persons were hanged for the crime: jeweler J. Albert Guay, whose aim was the murder of his wife, a passenger; Generaux Ruest, a crippled Quebec watchmaker who fashioned the bomb, and Mrs. Arthur Pitre, Ruest's sister, who placed it aboard the plane.

Graham, who is married and has two children, Allan, 2, and Susan, nine months, had been working with his mother in operating a drive-in restaurant in Denver. Officers said Graham was using his income to pay off $4,200 worth of cheques he forged against a Denver concern. Mrs. King paid $2,500 of the amount at the time her son received a five-year suspended sentence on conviction of forgery in 1951.

Doting Relatives a Major Cause Of Tooth Decay

So you have tried faithfully to observe the rules of mouth health; you have watched the diets, and enforced the cleansing of teeth immediately after meals; you have done all those things you feel you ought to [illegible] and still you find cavities re-appearing in your children's teeth at an alarming rate!

Is it gremlins, hopping from tooth to tooth, dropping tiny drops of acid as they go, that seem to confound our best efforts to control decay? Or could it be the doings of fond relatives, aunts and uncles, grandparents, friends, — yes, and even parents themselves?

Why must it be that the kindly impulses of these often misguided souls should so frequently take the form of gifts of sugary cookies, candies, rich cakes, ice cream smothered in syrupy coatings, and all such confections that are so perfectly adapted to the development of dental decay?

For example, it has been estimated that half a million dollars was spent last Easter on chocolate candy eggs and animal figures alone!

Of course, it is impossible, and certainly not desirable that our children be forbidden all forms of sweets; but do let us recognize the fact that there is a time and place for them when they will do the least harm. That time and place is after having eaten a wholesome, nutritious meal.

Sweet and starchy substances should never be made available between meals, or before serving the main course of the meal, for sweets satisfy the craving for food, without supplying the balanced diet so necessary for growing children.

If we could train ourselves, and the fond relatives and friends of our children to use ingenuity in expressing fondness in other, more practical ways; if we can train our children to expect sweets only after having eaten a regular meal, we shall have taken a great step forward in the control of dental diseases and decay.

One Road Across Canada

ONE usable road across the country would be a very modest expression of Canada's development as a nation. There are probably between three and four million car owners now, and the detours that many of them have to take to get through from one part of the country to another are no credit to Canadian initiative or enterprise. The Trans-Canada Highway has stood pledged to the people for more than two decades, yet today it does not exist in fact. West, centre and east, motorists are using part of the American highway system to get around the gaps in our own. In view of that, anything that looks like action at Ottawa on Canada's first coast-to-coast road would be welcome.

The initial proposition that the Provinces would build the Trans-Canada Highway in their own areas, while the Dominion paid half of these costs, has not worked out too well in experience. Provinces which had the money could and did build to national highway standards on their parts of the system. Provinces without sufficient resources for capital works did a limited amount of work on the route. In two Provinces, British Columbia and Ontario, serious physical barriers were encountered along the line of the originally suggested highway. In B.C. that was the 250-mile Big Bend loop, and in Ontario it has been the vast stretch of territory through the northern wilderness. This weakened some of the desire to build on the route laid down.

The new formula announced at Ottawa yesterday may prove a partial solution. The Dominion is offering to pay a limited 90 per cent of the cost of filling in the gaps on the highway, where that mileage is not more than 10 per cent of the mileage of the road within a province. Beyond the 10 per cent limit presumably the former 50-50 division of costs would still apply. This may suit some of the Provinces, and some action may result in consequence. On the other hand it does not settle the case for unusual and inordinate physical barriers. British Columbia, with 518 miles to complete, cannot move mountains to build a straight through-Canada road. Ontario will still have its northern wilderness.

If the table of sponsored distances for the remaining mileage cited at Ottawa is to be the test, British Columbia would receive 90 per cent federal aid on only 69 of the 518 miles to be completed. Ontario, with a suggested 141 sponsored miles, may be in a somewhat similar position; but neither Province can avoid the consequences of its topography. Why should not the Dominion give a real lead by taking over the completion of the Trans-Canada Highway outright, and then charge back whatever might be the adjusted balances over a long-term period. That would give Canada one through road.

Part-Time Postmaster-General

THE post office is one of the Dominion government's largest departments and also one of its most complex. If it were in private hands it would be the biggest business undertaking in the country and the man who headed it would have tremendous responsibility. It is astonishing, therefore, that Prime Minister St. Laurent should treat the office of postmaster-general as only a part-time job; yet that is what he has done in giving the appointment to Hon. Hugues Lapointe, minister of veterans' affairs.

Mr. Lapointe now has to divide his time between two departments with nothing whatever in common, an arrangement which rarely works out well in governmental practice even when the departments involved are of relatively minor importance. The upshot is likely to be the delegation of more and more authority to permanent officials in Ottawa, for Mr. Lapointe with two portfolios cannot possibly devote enough attention to either. It is particularly unfortunate also that veterans' affairs should be the department to suffer in order that the post office should have a cabinet head to succeed the late Hon. Alcide Cote.

There has been some conjecture as to what possible considerations could have persuaded the prime minister to make this strange division of authority. Mr. Gerald Waring in his column from Ottawa today suggests that Mr. Lapointe's appointment is temporary as a means of keeping the postmaster-generalship "on ice" for a French-Canadian appointee of Mr. St. Laurent's personal preference. If this is so it reflects an extraordinarily casual attitude on the prime minister's part towards supervision of the post office.

That this department needs close and undivided attention has been obvious for a long time. Due to the prolonged illness of the late minister, it is now almost a year since the post office has had an active cabinet head. This may or may not be the reason for the deterioration of service which has given rise lately to widespread dissatisfaction. Whether it is or not, matters have reached a stage where a vigorous minister is needed to put the department back into shape. That can scarcely be done by a postmaster-general who has another large department to run as well. Things can only go from bad to worse under a part-time manager.

A National Cenotaph

THE Canadian Legion has urged upon the federal government the erection of a national cenotaph in memory of the dead of all Canada's wars. Remembering that there is in Confederation Square in Ottawa a massive sculptured war memorial this might seem a strange submission, but the facts give strength to the Legion's representations. The latter memorial was erected between the two world wars in tribute to the dead of 1914-19, which inscription only it bears. This in itself is surprising since practically all other memorials to that war across the country have been amended by the addition of the dates 1939-45, thus including the last global conflict. Obviously in the national capital there is a serious omission in this respect.

The Legion's idea is to rectify the matter by having a new national memorial that would symbolize the sacrifice of all those who gave up their lives in defence of the nation. It would carry no dates. The memorial would thus honor the dead of Korea, the two world wars, the Boer War and, presumably, those of the earlier military struggles on Canadian soil. Doubtless also it would serve to remember the individual Canadians who fought and died in various British campaigns of the last century. The proposal is that the memorial should stand in the shadow of the Peace Tower, in the centre of the walk dividing the lawns of the Parliament Buildings. No more splended setting could be envisaged.

This suggestion has much to commend it. The cenotaph form of monument, an unadorned pillar of stone, would be all-embracing; nor could the present Ottawa memorial be altered by inscription to effect this. Its sculptured group of figures prevents it being comprehensive in character. The idea also of recalling those earlier guardians of Canada, forgotten mostly except in history books, is a fine gesture. Such a cenotaph would be truly a national war memorial and its erection visible proof that the nation remembered with gratitude the long roll of all its service dead. The capital and the country alike would be honored in so honoring the memory of these stalwart defenders of Canada.

Interpreting the News

Hope Springs Eternal

ONE can work up a pretty good argument as to whether it is wise to end one unsuccessful international conference by announcing plans for another.

The factors involved are both tangible and intangible. Not all are directly involved with the major question, which is the tug-of-war for Germany.

The chief intangible factor is that scheduling another four-power meeting now tends to continue the situation which began when the summit meeting was planned, in which unfounded hopes for East-West settlements interfere with prosecution of the Western defence program.

* * *

Russia's clear demonstration this time that she pursues a strictly "heads I win, tails you lose" policy should put a damper on this tendency. Nevertheless, the tendency to mark time pending scheduled negotiations is always there, and is especially noticeable in connection with such things as West German rearmament.

The other side of this coin is that during the latest negotiation period Red China has also been marking time in her political approach, if not in her military preparations, on the Formosa question.

Highly significant, however, is the fact that Russia, grabbing a long-awaited opportunity to infiltrate the Middle East, was not deterred by her interest in the facade of the Geneva spirit.

* * *

The Allies may hope, by scheduling a new conference to delay Russia's direct approach to West Germany on the reunification issue.

Both sides at Geneva have made many moves designed primarily to influence nations which are not yet definitely committed in the cold war. An appearance of sincerity in trying for settlements is important in this contest.

There is not the slightest reason to believe, however, that another conference next spring will bring the contestants any closer to agreement.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

A GREAT LADY will arrive in Victoria tomorrow, Dame Flora MacLeod of MacLeod, the 28th chief of her clan, who lives in a castle in Skye that is 700 years old.

In that castle is a precious treasure, the Fairy Flag of Dunvegan, and this is its story, sent to me by a friend and printed without change.

An heir had been born to the fourth chief at the end of the fourteenth century, and there was much rejoicing in the Great Hall, now the drawing room, of the Castle. In the midst of the festivities the child's nurse, who had been celebrating only too well, suddenly remembered the reason for her celebrations and, on rushing upstairs to what has ever since been called the Fairy Tower, she found her neglected charge, wrapped in a flag, lying on the floor and being lulled to sleep by fairy voices. The terrified nurse picked up the child and the flag and hurried back to the Hall. As she ran, the voices were heard chanting that if the flag were waved aloft on three occasions of dire danger for the chief and the clan, succor would come.

* * *

The flag has been waved three times: it was waved at the Battle of Trumpan when the MacLeods were outnumbered and hard pressed by their ancient enemies, the Macdonalds; it was waved when a cattle pleague brought the MacLeods face to face with starvation. Each time the clan was saved.

The third waving saw the fulfilment of a strange prophecy, which foretold that, if the flag were waved on any but an occasion of great distress, the heir, the fourth Norman, would die an accidental death, the Maidens (certain well-known rocks on the coast of the MacLeod country) would be sold to a Campbell, and that when a vixen had a litter of cubs in the Castle, the MacLeods would be forced to sell the greater part of their property.

In 1799, the Chief's factor, a man named Buchanan, having employed a blacksmith secretly to break open the chest in which the flag was kept, waved the flag aloft. Within a matter of days the heir, the fourth Norman, was killed when HMS Queen Charlotte blew up, the sale of the Maidens to Angus Campbell of Ensay was completed, and a tame vixen, owned by Lieutenant Maclean, who was staying in the Castle, had a litter of cubs in the west turret, whereupon the fortunes of the MacLeods, now happily restored, began to decline.

* * *

The Fairy Flag, now in a glazed picture frame, hangs in the drawing room of the Castle. It measures approximately 24 inches by 48 inches, and is buff colored. Portions are missing, and some of its many holes have been minutely darned with red silk.

Modern antiquarians, who are less disposed to believe in fairies than they should be, are inclined to identify the Fairy Flag with a magic banner named Landoda, which Harald Haardrada is said to have brought with him when he invaded England in 1066. But Harald was defeated at Stamford Bridge, and his invasion earned him no more than the seven feet of earth which English Harold had promised him.

All this is as may be; but the antiquarians have not yet explained how Landoda came to Dunvegan Castle, nor yet how Landoda, so palpably lacking in magic at Stamford Bridge, came to be recharged with it in time for the Battle of Trumpan.

No: there are occasions when fairies are easier to believe in than antiquarians.

Reports from Ottawa

WHEN the cabinet defence committee was asked to okay the appointment of Brig. J. M. Rockingham as major-general commanding the First Division last year, the chairman objected.

Prime Minister St. Laurent objected because he wanted to give the promotion and appointment to Brig. Jean Victor Allard, a 42-year-old French-Canadian officer.

While Allard's selection would have raised the ratio of French-Canadian major-generals from one in 10 to two in 11, other members of the committee demurred. Allard was much junior to Rockingham. St. Laurent put the question to a vote, and lost.

"Very well," he is said to have retorted. "I'll make him a cabinet minister."

* * *

For a while recently that's what seemed to be happening. Certainly by naming Veterans Minister Lapointe to a second portfolio, that of the post office, St. Laurent put either the veterans or the postal ministry on ice for a new French-Canadian minister to succeed the late Postmaster-General Cote. But now the new minister may not be Allard.

The political rules which govern cabinet representation indicate that the new minister must come from the Montreal area. The Liberals sounded out their organization in Cote's old riding, St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville, to see if it would accept Allard as Liberal candidate. The answer was a disconcerting "No, thanks". The local Grits prefer a local boy.

That being the only vacant seat in the Montreal area, the PM would have to open up another one to get Allard into the Commons and the cabinet. He'd have to induce a sitting member to resign—for example, by offering him a Senate seat. That course presented too many difficulties, and so Allard now appears to have been put on ice along with the cabinet appointment itself, until the PM can decide what to do.

* * *

People who know Allard well say he's one of the finest senior officers in the army, and that the service would miss him if he entered politics. His record supports this view. A reserve major when World War II started, he wound up as a brigadier with a DSO and two bars.

Allard stayed in the army, and was sent to Moscow as military attache. He is said to have a good understanding of the Russian mentality. Later he was posted to Korea, where he spent 14 months commanding the Canadian brigade.

He is described as "a brainy and cultured officer, with an engaging personality and a Gallic sense of humor" who "can hold his own in any company". Physically he's a handsome man, somewhat thick set, who takes strenuous exercise to keep his weight down. He now commands the 3rd Brigade at Valcartier, Que., and is a welcome visitor at Prime Minister St. Laurent's summer home at St. Patrice, Que.

Allard has obviously impressed the PM greatly, but that doesn't entirely explain St. Laurent's seeming determination to bring him into the cabinet—a move which, whenever it comes, is bound to disappoint and anger Quebec Liberal MPs who believe they have prior claims on any vacant Quebec seats in the cabinet.

The key may be the PM's realization that his present French-Canadian ministers by and large are not a very impressive lot, and belief that Allard would help improve the breed.

Student Hooliganism

(From The Toronto Telegram)

A FEW brainless dolts are making a disgraceful spectacle of intercollegiate football games.

These games traditionally provide an outlet for high-spirited undergraduates. Pranks and good-natured practical jokes are part of the contest and spectators enjoy them as much as the students. But riotous behavior is plain hooliganism and when a girl has her head cracked open by a flying liquor bottle and when two students are nearly blinded by lime bombs—one of them may lose the sight of an eye for life—the law ought to bear down as it would on hoodlums.

It is astonishing, when one comes to think of it, how anyone so completely stupid as to throw bottles of a burning chemical like lime can at the same time be a student at a university. A high sense of responsibility or of comportment is not expected in all university students, but are admission standards so low that morons can enter a university and receive the dignified title of student? It is remarkable, in the first place, that Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, should deem it necessary to appeal to the student body to refrain from acts of vandalism and violence. It is amazing when such an extraordinary request should be ignored. The conduct of some Queen's students was similarly reprehensible even though they may not have been urged to behave themselves.

Whatever action the university authorities may take, the Crown ought to take the view that what occurred at Kingston was a disorderly and dangerous outbreak for which those responsible deserve punishment. An example should be made of them to deter others from committing the same outrage.

"Yes, yer reverence," answered the barber.

"That just shows you," went on the priest, "what drink will do."

"Yes, replied Pat cheerfully, "it does make the skin moighty tender."

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

IN THE Boston hotel we were stopping at on a recent motor tour of the lobster and flounder country, I overheard a curious little snatch of conversation. In the lobby a man dressed as a waiter, carrying a tray, was being balled out by an older man who appeared to be a manager in the establishment.

"Even if you do belong to the union," said the older man, heatedly, "you've got to like working here!"

He put a passionate emphasis on the word "like." The waiter, a sullen looking man, opened his eyes in astonishment. At any rate, the idea seemed to strike him as something new. After a pause, he nodded briefly and went on his way with the tray.

I went over and sat down in one of the lobby chairs to think this over. With the great growth of trade unions this little problem, expressed by the hotel manager, must be an increasingly toughy one with union leaders and the men doing the thinking at the top of the big unions. To what extent does efficiency include good will on the part of an employee? Perhaps the answer is: to the extent good will is manifested by management.

It would be hard to say exactly, how many people in this world are happy in their work. There must be tens of thousands among us of whom it could be said we like doing what we are doing better than something we used to do before. In factories, offices, stores, or driving street cars and buses, operating trucks, handling heavy goods in warehouses, there must be no end of people who are content to work from day to day at their present job only because it is a better job than some they previously attempted. But there is no joy in it.

And surely one of the most hopeless feelings in the world must be that of a manager or superintendent or foreman trying to conduct an enterprise when he knows that everybody in the place, doing the job properly and strictly within the appointed times and limits, really does not like working there.

In the hotel business, of course, a disgruntled staff can really upset the atmosphere of hospitality so important to the industry.

The unions could maintain that it is all a question of good will on the part of management. Maybe it is. But on the face of it, it does not sound reasonable. In the Boston hotel, I saw the same waiter in the dining room and manoeuvred myself to one of his tables. He was a surly man. I don't think he liked being a waiter.

Cats and Firemen

(From The Times, London)

WHEN Bateman drew his picture of the guardsman dropping his rifle he may have been innocently expressing the unconscious death-humiliation wish of the entire Brigade of Guards, for every august institution must have its own pet nightmare, must secretly dread and dwell on one particular catastrophe.

What it is that haunts the Royal Navy, the Royal Air Force, or the Metropolitan police it is not for us to determine, but failure to rescue cats from trees must come high up on the fire brigade's list. What is normally only a product of nervous imagination has, it seems, for one brigade become a horrid reality. At Brookham a cat did, if report is to be believed, defy all efforts to rescue it.

The whole question of cats and fire brigades needs looking into. The nimbleness of firemen in going up ladders, indeed their very possession of those ladders, provides an obvious reason for calling on the fire brigade rather than any other branch of the public service whenever a cat is observed up a tree, but and this is the point is the cat really in need of rescuing?

It is hard in the light of a cat's lively agility and its jumping exploits to believe that it has no head for heights and is given to attacks of vertigo. Certainly it is never in danger of losing any one of its nine lives in shinning up a tree and it should be, and probably is, kitten's play for it to get down again.

It was long Mr. Mack Sennett's ambition, according to his autobiography, to make fun of policemen, and that glorious body of men entitled to wear the Keystone badge resulted. The temptation to make fun of firemen is, apparently, not so strong in the human race. Even Gilbert's tribute to Captain Shaw is not entirely mocking, but it does not need a particularly subtle cat to appreciate the comic possibilities afforded by the bustling efficiency of the brigade's turn-out and the pathetic anti-climax of the failure to rescue its own ironic, observant self.

There are, on the one hand, the resplendent uniforms, the imposing vehicles with their brass polished and shining, the self-important clangour of the bell clearing the road, and, on the other—well, on the other is a cat sitting back and enjoying itself.

Goldstream for Indians

Isn't it a wonderful feeling to be able to breathe normal again since our beloved Princess made that tremendous decision? I feel that I am not alone to be concerned towards the Royal Family's happiness and well-being. Even if the decision had been the other way I believe a very large majority of the British Commonwealth of peoples would have been understanding.

I also feel that I am not alone in the way we have adjusted our lives towards the British Crown. I have been fortunate enough to have visited Britain twice and know and saw how Their Majesties are regarded by their loyal subjects. My decision—they're a grand and wonderful family.

As I lie in bed and have time to meditate I often wish I could breathe freely all the time. I am concerned about our properties, at present mostly about Goldstream.

Many happy days I spent at Goldstream during my boyhood. I can remember all the good times we had there. We used to hunt and fish to our hearts' content in those days. I saw the day when there were thousands of coho and dog salmon and ducks by the hundreds. There was feasting and fun for all in those days and believe me it's something to look back to.

A couple of years ago there was so much talk about an Indian village being built somewhere near Victoria. May I say you couldn't find a better and more ideal place than Goldstream. We could develop Goldstream with the help of good, sympathetic people and make it one of the best attractions and an all-year-round village for my people.

How about it?

Rational Approach

It is reported in the Colonist spiritual instruction, preferring of Nov. 10 that the Victoria and instead a rational approach to District Parent-Teacher Council the problems of humanity. "feels there is no necessity for a change in the current religious education program in city schools."

This safe decision might imply that there is unanimity of feeling on this question, but in fact there are many thinking people who do not wish their children to receive traditional religious instruction is freely available in the Sunday schools. It is therefore unnecessary to infringe upon the individual's right to religious freedom by giving unsolicited instruction to his children in the classroom.

Aldermen Need Vision

In declining to make myself available as an aldermanic candidate again this year, may I be permitted to make a few observations?

Is there sufficient appreciation in Victoria of some basic mayoral and aldermanic qualifications, including studies and experience elsewhere of important national interests and developments in relation to civic affairs?

Apart from the necessity of ability, integrity and initiative, together with a deep sense of responsibility and proof of loyalty to Canada, there are fundamental principles and worthy aims in city council service, as in civic administration, that should embrace sound concepts of Canadian citizenship, national health and welfare, cultural interests, immigration problems, housing, town planning, etc. How many councillors study and evaluate civic affairs and progress reports of other cities?

In short, the need is for greater vision, some national experience, plus sound judgment in civic affairs, which a few city council members have been known to lack.

Business experience, platform performances and promises, extensive advertising, or the apparent popularity of a candidate are too often misleading electioneering factors. It is my firm conviction—and many agree—that all candidates seeking election in the city council should be required to complete a carefully prepared application form or a questionnaire. Candidate's brief answers to pertinent, leading questions to be read by chairman or heard extemporaneously from performances and promises, extencandidate (if oral answers to questpossibly published in the press for comparison.

As in the case of civil service and business firm applications and interviews for positions of trust and responsibility, the voting public would thus be better able to judge each candidate's qualifications and experience, apart from the speeches, to faithfully discharge council duties and responsibilities, and possibly form a better impression of his prospective co-operative efforts and efficiency, if elected.

Grading Movies

As I read "Under the Dome" on Friday I thought, as I have often thought, how much better it would be if "adult" and "universal" certificates were issued with each movie, as in Britain. Children under 16 are not allowed in theatres where "A" films are being shown. Surely this would be preferable to allowing them to see all films, many of which are quite unsuitable for them?

Control Charged

Moffats Ltd. Accused Of Price Infraction

OTTAWA (CP)—The restrictive trade practices commission says it believes manufacturers who attempt to control the advertised retail price of their products are guilty of breaking federal anti-combine laws.

The three-man body expressed that opinion in accusing Moffats Ltd. of Weston, Ont., widely-known producer of household appliances, with breaking Parliament's ban on resale price maintenance. The controversial 1951 law barred manufacturers from attempting to set the price of their products in wholesale or retail trade.

The commission's evidence, outlined in a report today to Justice Minister Garson, was that Moffats maintained a plan whereby it paid a portion of a dealer's advertising costs, if, in advertisements on Moffat products, the dealer inserted prices approved by the manufacturer.

The commission charged the company withdrew financial assistance to dealers who advertised Moffat products at prices below those approved by the company. Mr. Garson said he will decide later whether to initiate court prosecution.

Moffats, a subsidiary of a United States firm, argued that it did not contravene the law because any move to have a product advertised at a particular price must be distinguished from any endeavor to have the product actually sold at such a price. There had been cases where the products were sold below the advertised price.

But the commission maintained that made little difference. It took the view that advertising is part of the selling process.

Supersonic Speed Bail-Out Nearly Killed Test Pilot

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Test pilot George Smith, the first pilot to bail out of a plane travelling supersonically and live, now wants to fly a plane at 2,000 mph.

After six months in hospital, Smith is ready for another assignment. He has passed the civil aeronautics administration physical examination regaining his commercial flying certificate.

Smith recalls very little of his "big jump." His story was told Monday for the first time. It had been classified as secret.

Faster than the speed of sound, the fighter plane blasted downward at an 80-degree angle. Its controls were locked. This was on Feb. 26, 1955.

The 31-year-old pilot turned off his fuel, opened the speed brakes and pulled his helmet visor over his eyes. With his right hand he pulled up on the armrest of his seat, automatically ejecting the canopy. Two seconds more and it would have been too late.

He lost consciousness and didn't come to until five days later in a hospital, where he stayed six months.

It was estimated Smith was subjected to a decelerative force of 40 times the pull of gravity as his parachute snapped open. There was bleeding in all parts of the body as the pull increased George's weight from its 215 pounds to the equivalent force of 8,000 in a split second.

His arms flailed with such force after he left the plane that his wristwatch, gloves and signet ring were shaken off. His knee joints were loosened. For several days Smith was blind because of bleeding in the eyeballs and damage to the retina. The whites of his eyes were bloodshot solid red.

At 35,000 feet altitude above the ocean the controls jammed on his F-100 Super Sabre. George ejected himself and the rush of air going by at nearly 800 miles an hour made a tremendous noise which he described as sounding like a continuous barrage of heavy guns.

It is believed he bailed out at about 6,500 feet. In just two seconds more his parachute wouldn't have had time to open.

Los Angeles businessman Art Berkell was fishing off the southern California coast.

He saw a geyser of white and foaming water shoot up about 200 yards from his fishing cruiser. A limp figure floated from the end of a torn parachute.

Berkell had been a navy air-sea rescue man in the Second World War. Smith became his 276th rescue.

The test pilot's shoes and socks were gone. His clothes were in ribbons. He was bleeding from cuts on his—forehead, chin and feet.

At first Smith was in so severe a shock that his pulse was barely audible. After months of treatment he has gained back to 175 pounds, his eyes remain a bit sensitive to flare and there is a slight lack of color perception. But his vision is again 20-20. Damage to his liver means he can never touch anything containing alcohol.

Smith's bail-out gave the air force and medicine valuable information.

What does the test pilot want to do now? He wants to fly a plane at 2,000 miles an hour.

A more recent case of bailing out at supersonic speed was reported last week by the British air ministry. FO Henry Holland, 22, an RAF pilot, said his jet fighter went into a dive at 40,000 feet over the North sea and with his speed at 700 miles an hour he was unable to pull out. He parachuted four miles off the coast.

A target-towing tug rescued him. Attendants at Ipswich Hospital said he suffered fractures of the arm and pelvis and two black eyes.

Quitting At 65 Scored

VANCOUVER (CP)—One of Canada's most colossal wastes of productivity is compulsory retirement at the age of 65, Dr. Martin Hoffman of Montreal said in an interview here.

An internationally known authority on problems of aging, Dr. Hoffman said that the birthday date is no way to judge a man's ability.

"The increasing number of older people in Canada makes it necessary to utilize the capabilities and experience of those still physically and mentally active," he said.

Many over 65 crack up faster when they find themselves with nothing to do and perhaps faced by financial problems.

"Hobbies can't have the same value as a job and the feeling of accomplishment," he says.

Reasonable health precautions and check-ups for those approaching older years can do much to eliminate future trouble.

Overweight was a problem which many middle-aged persons overlooked he said, because it did not affect their health at the time. But it could do much harm later.

Dr. Hoffman said increasing cost of new and advanced medical treatment and technology has spelled the end for hospitals depending on philanthropy.

Better days are here for Phil Fraser!

In all his years of railroading, Engineer Phillip Fraser has seen some big changes.

"Rolling along in this smooth diesel locomotive," says Mr. Fraser, "is a real thrill — a far cry from driving the old steam jobs. Its extra power gives it quicker pick-up and more speed on the grades. Besides, it can run from coast to coast without a change. That's what I call progress!"

Phil has seen progress in the life insurance business too. As a family man, he knows that this business offers better service today than ever before.

Take life underwriters, for instance. Modern training makes these men better qualified to guide people through the complex problems of planning for future security.

Today, too, life insurance is more flexible. There's a wider range of plans — allowing people to meet their own individual needs.

Moreover, people with certain physical handicaps, can now enjoy the protection of life insurance.

In these and other ways, the life insurance companies in Canada have progressed with the times to meet the changing needs of people in all walks of life!

cold weather can make your car stall

Remember when your car stalls in traffic it may be the gasoline!

ESSO EXTRA GASOLINE
STOPS COLD WEATHER STALLING

Ice in the carburetor is a major reason why cars stall. Is your car stalling these days? Before you blame it on a cold engine or badly adjusted carburetor, try Esso Extra—improved to give you even greater protection against cold weather stalling. It combats the formation of ice anywhere in your car's fuel system.

As gasoline vaporizes in the carburetor it has a refrigerating effect. Condensation from the intake air freezes, ice crystals stop the fuel supply—and your car stalls! Avoid this with Esso Extra Gasoline.

Provocative Talk Denied by Plant

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Vice-Marshal John Plant denies that he has ever advocated war with the Russians.

In his first public statement since he lost his job as chief of RCAF Technical Services for his "scrap-the-army speech" last June 2, he said it is possible for a speaker to be misrepresented even if not misquoted.

He told the Canadian Owners and Pilots Association here Saturday night that those who suggested that he had advocated war were a "bit off their rockers."

The atom and hydrogen bombs could destroy all life on earth.

"In this light no one would say as I have been quoted as saying, that I'm keen, willing and anxious that war should occur," he said.

Air Vice-Marshal Plant, now chief of the RCAF's Air Material Command, was quoted by The Canadian Press as telling the Aviation Writers Association at Toronto June 2:

"We are keen, anxious and willing to take them (the Russians) on any time they attack us. If we fight the Russians we will beat the pants off them or anyone else who wants to take us on."

He said Saturday night that as a serving officer he has a sacred duty to his country to see that those serving under him have the interest, equipment, morale and stamina to meet the enemy if he should attack.

That was a long way from advocating war, he added. It was the advocacy of preparedness as a means of preventing war.

Air Vice-Marshal Plant said a speaker takes a chance if he tries to be interesting. It was no wonder he was a devotee of air power. There would be something wrong with him if he weren't.

GM Pact Clears Way For Talks

TORONTO (CP) — A dispute which for 56 days blocked negotiations on a contract between General Motors and 17,000 striking employees was resolved during the weekend.

The issue—concerning a seniority plan at the big Oshawa plant—was the last of a number of one-plant matters to be agreed upon before top-level talks on a general contract could start.

Officials of the company and United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) were expected to open talks Tuesday on a wage contract to cover employees in GM's five plants in Ontario.

It was agreed soon after the strike was called Sept. 19 that all minor, local issues be solved before general negotiations resume.

Father Finds Frozen Son

SHEET HARBOR, N.S. (CP)—A 12-year-old boy died during an 18-hour weekend ordeal in snow-laden woods near here despite a valiant rescue attempt by his father. Two brothers suffered from exposure.

The bitter cold and dampness claimed the life of Gerald Owen.

Brothers Richard, 18, and Alexander, 14, are under a doctor's care at home.

The father, pulp - mill worker Ralph Owen, father of 10 children, tramped nearly 25 miles in an effort to save his three sons.

The boys had gone into the woods to look after their father's traps. Six hours later the father became alarmed and started to search for them.

Seven miles from the highway he found them, cold and huddled under a ledge. Gerald was in a state of extreme exhaustion.

Mrs. Owen gave birth in a daughter within hours of her son's death.

SPORTS REVUE

By Jimmy Cannon

NEW YORK (NANA)—Tension seizes Joe Lapchick, the coach of the New York Knickerbockers, at the beginning of every basketball season. It torments him until the last game is played. There is no one in sports who suffers more. He is persecuted by a constant despondency which sickens him and prevents sleep. But he is a pleasant-minded man who seldom becomes crabbed with his associates. He abuses himself with a morbib cruelty but he is considerate with others.

"Too many people are critical of what a guy can't do," said Lapchick before last week's game with Minneapolis. "They don't see what he can do. You take Ray Felix. He falls down. The ball flutters through his hands. He can't make the play. But they never see what he can do that hurts the other team. The guys on the club like him."

We were sitting in his office in the Garden. He remembered his first season as a coach at St. John's.

"I had a new team," Lapchick said. "I had one good boy—Jerry Bush. I never played in high school or college. I didn't know what a coach was supposed to do. I didn't know anything about drills. I didn't know anything at all about coaching.

"One of the boys was asked by one of the faculty about me. The boy said, 'Lapchick stinks.' I was told to throw the boy off the squad. As far as I was concerned the boy was absolutely right. I found out that season you learn everything through the nose.

"I sleep fairly well in the off season. But I'm a nembutal man all the way. I go to sleep at 12.30 and wake up at 1.30 and feel refreshed. Or so I think. I guess in the quiet of the night you do your best thinking. So on goes the light. A cigaret. I think about the game. Then I go to a magazine. Then I suddenly think, I got to get some sleep. But it's hard.

* * *

"You're too happy to sleep when you win. You let down very deeply when you lose. In either case, winning or losing, it isn't good. So during the season I get three, four hours sleep. Five hours is real good. I pick up an hour's nap during the afternoon.

"Everyone wants to win. I was with the Celtics for seven, eight years. Before every big game my knees started to knock. I never got over that feeling as a coach. You want it to go good. You don't feel this way, you're whistling in the dark.

"Your nerves got to supper if you want to do it good. I remember I was coaching St. John's in the N.I.T. We were seeded last and playing De Paul. It was five minutes to go until the end of the second half. We had a five-point lead. I collapsed on the bench. When I came to, we were 12 ahead.

"Another time, the Knicks were playing Fort Wayne. I barely made the dressing room. They got me back to the hotel. They had to give me a needle to quiet me. It had me all knotted up. I never get used to it. It's always the same. My guts are up in my neck every game. I've been in the hospital twice with nerves.

"I'm never relaxed. But I never take it out on the players. Every game we play is a doubleheader. I play the second one back in the room. You can't blame the kids. I know what it's like. Sometimes I'd drive 250 miles in a car. All I wanted was sleep. I was all in. I didn't want to play. But I'd have a hell of a night. Other times, I'd be rested, feel good and have a lousy night. The kids are the same way.

"One of your best guys has a bad night, you got to do down with him. You put him in and take him out. He blows a hanger. That's part of the game. I never eat before a game and if I lose, I don't feel light eating afterwards. But I keep my weight. I don't have lucers. One thing I know. There are no moral victories. You either win or you lose.

* * *

"When I lose, I go to my room and lock the door. I'm not very good company when I lose. Lots of things bother me. Fellows come, fellows go. It's part of the game. I hate firing a guy. We had a kid, Ray Kuka, a big 6-4 kid from Montana. I called him in. I told him I was firing him. He started to cry, a big 6-foot-4 kid. First thing you know, I started to cry with him. I put my arm around him and said, forget it. I told him to stay.

"He was good enough to stay in the league the rest of the season. He could really play Joe Fulks. That was the guy we had to stop. Maybe he couldn't do a lot of things but he could play Joe Fulks. Fans sit and watch and holler—they know so little how guys crack up and break down.

"What's the dividing line? Complete control of yourself—or the other thing. Where is it? You can't put your finger on it. Some guys, after a game, they go in and eat and have a few beers and talk about a lot of things. Other guys come in the same restaurant, and can't eat anything.

"I've never been on a last-place club. How do you conduct yourself? You're on a last-place club, what can you do about it? I guess they go through the same thing as the guys in first place. I got to think it out at night. I just got to. I get a lot of bugs out of the team. You see things clearly. You see minor things. Maybe you blew it yourself."

But last week he didn't blow it and the Knicks won, 112-105.

Last night's score—Vancouver 5, VICTORIA 2.

Next games tonight—Calgary at Vancouver, Edmonton at Regina.

BY JIM TANG

If it's true that it's the darkest before the dawn, Victoria Cougars must be about ready to emerge from the deep freeze they have been in ever since things cooled off outside Memorial arena.

Cougars, who cooled off as suddenly as Victoria weather last Friday, hit a new low for the season along with the temperature last night as they lost, 5-2, to Vancouver Canucks, no heat wave themselves, at Memorial arena.

Only about 2,000 fans, believed to be a new Western Hockey league low in Victoria, braved the freezing temperature and icy streets to watch a spiritless game which didn't indicate at any time that the two clubs were battling for the Western division leadership.

DROP TO SECOND

Canucks won it and the Cougars are as low as second place for the first time this season. Two points out of the lead with a 9-7 record and two games in hand is no showing which should cause panic but the Cougars have played so badly in the last three games that there is some reason for worry.

After winning three in a row, scoring 11 goals and allowing only two, there has been a big let-down both ways. In the past three games, the Cougars have scored only five times and, worse, have been scored on 16 times.

Last night, they never did get organized. They weren't skating and passed the puck is if they were complete strangers. Canucks were ripe to be taken, looking just as unimpressive, but the Cougars could never get started. They tried hard enough but the dash and bustle which has been a trademark of their play in almost every game this season just couldn't be found. Ironically, a desperate bit of hustling gave Canucks what proved to be the winning goal.

SCORES WINNER

That happened late in the third period with the score tied at 2-2. Phil Maloney and Les Lilley broke in and Lilley took the pass for a clear shot. Marcel Pelletier made the save but Bill Dobbyn, throwing himself on the ice to help cover up the goal-mouth, carried the puck into the goal.

That was a sample of the misfortunes which added to their woes but the Cougars also helped more than a little on the other four shots which eluded Pelletier.

Bunching, a glaring fault all evening, allowed Bill Wylie to tie after Doug Anderson had opened the scoring. An opportunity missed by bad passing set up the break which put Canucks ahead, 2-1, Dobbyn's bad luck came shortly after Floyd Hillman had tied it at 2-2 with a blazing slap shot from just inside the Vancouver blue line while Cougars were playing shorthanded.

MIX-UP COSTLY

And if that wasn't enough, the 4-2 goal was at least partially caused by a mix-up in changing players and the 5-2 clincher came when failure to clear gave Maloney a close-in shot.

Ray Ceresino, new left winger who replaces rookie Reg Bellivau, returned to Boston Bruins, made his first appearance for the Cougars. Not yet ready for full-time duty, he played from time to time on a line which had coach Ed Olson on right wing and Skip Teal at centre. At other times, Olson moved to left wing and Mark Marquess took over on the starboard side of Teal.

Cougars play next on Friday, when they host Seattle Americans. They go to Seattle for a return trip on Saturday to com-

'Skins Smash Drake Hopes; Win 38-0 on Ice-Bound Field

BY JIM TAYLOR
(Colonist Staff Writer)

FORT WILLIAM—Oak Bay Drakes' dream of bringing the Western Canada intermediate Canadian football championship home to Victoria turned into a nightmare here Sunday afternoon when the Drakes fell, 38-0, before the onslaught of the rough-and-ready Fort William Redskins.

Redskins, who leaped to football prominence a week previous by ousting Winnipeg Rams, defending Canadian champions, 13-1, in the Western semi-final, showed the 2,600 blanket-and-bottle fans who braved sleet, snow and bitter cold that they are a top contender for Canadian honors by drubbing a thoroughly outplayed and outclassed bunch of West Coasters from opening kick-off to final whistle.

SNOW BLANKETS FIELD

It was the Drakes' first taste of winter weather football and the taste was exceedingly bitter. McKellar Field was blanketed by snow which started to fall Saturday morning and didn't let up until after the game.

The weather and the best competition they faced this season were too much of a combination for the Drakes. Their kicking and defensive play were not good and their vaunted running attack was a weak and inadequate thing to behold.

Their passing was no better, if it wasn't worse. When quarterbacks Don Hendry and Casey O'Gorman took to the air, the alert Redskins turned the passes into weapons of their own, intercepting five of the 13 attempts, once to stop the only Oak Bay threat of the game.

But even if Sunday's game had been played under ideal weather conditions, the Drakes would have found the going very rough. The score might have been closer but the result would have been the same. Coach Baldy James' Redskins, for six straight years champions of their own league, had too well-balanced a team for the losers.

POWERFUL ATTACK

Spearheaded by a ground attack which rolled up 464 yards as compared to 95 yards for the Drakes, Fort William got off to a 20-0 lead by half-time and never for an instant let up pressure.

Drakes' tackling left much to be desired and Redskins took full advantage. Time and again a Fort William player would burst through three and four Drakes to roll up long gains on plays that should have been stopped at the line of scrimmage.

Kennie Wagoner, Eddie Kruppa, Vic Marks and Eddie Niecharz, all backs with a penchant for the middle of the line, bulled their way through the Drakes all afternoon. Wagoner and Niecharz each accounted for 10 points, Kruppa scored eight and Marks added five as the four accounted for all but five of the winner's total of points.

EARLY LEAD

Redskins scored three points in the first three minutes on three kicks by Murray McKenzie, who averaged 38 yards with his 11 punts. Near the end of the first quarter, O'Gorman was smothered on the Drake six-yard line when he attempted to kick and Fort William took over. Marks tore over for the touchdown and Kruppa converted to make it 9-0.

Drakes finally got over the midfield stripe in the second quarter and went all the way to the Fort William 25-yard line before one of Hendry's passes was intercepted. From there the only thing left to decide was the final margin of victory.

Wagoner, who found the left side of the Drake line easy all game, burst through a hole wide enough for the Fort William band in the second quarter and galloped for another touchdown. Kruppa's convert made it 15-0. Then a fumble by O'Gorman set up a touchdown for Niecharz to make it 20-0 at the half-way mark.

Redskins scored once in the third quarter, Kruppa duplicating Wagoner's run over left tackle for another touchdown. The rest of the scoring came in the final 15 minutes. Wagoner went around left end for his second touchdown and Niecharz got his second through the line. Two converts and McKenzie's fourth deadline kick completed the scoring.

Fort William now plays Peterborough Orfums at Peterborough on Saturday for the Canadian intermediate championship.

Fort William Fans Don't Mind Snow

FORT WILLIAM (Special)—Fort William fans take their football seriously. Sunday afternoon, when their beloved Redskins walloped Oak Bay Drakes, 38-0, to win the Western Canada Intermediate Canadian Football championship, the Lakehead city's gridiron enthusiasts turned out in force to cheer on the team, and put on a demonstation that would put anything as yet shown in Victoria to shame.

The temperature was in the low 20's, snow was falling and the wind was whipping across the field at 20 to 30 miles an hour. Still the fans turned out, 2,600 strong, setting a new attendance record in cheering on the 'Skins.

DRESSED FOR OCCASION

They came in blankets, parkas, extra coats or anything else wearable. They didn't stop at merely attending either. From the time the Redskins made their first appearance till they trotted off the field as Western Canada champions, the Fort Williamites kept up a continuing torrent of organized cheers, locomotives and just plain rebel yells. Shivering cheerleaders in short skirts and blouses ran from one end of the field to the other, exhorting the fans to even greater efforts.

Behind the whole show was the Lakehead Quarterback Club. It was the club that was responsible for putting "Support the Redskins" buttons or corsages on every coat, for putting men in full dress Indian costumes on the sidelines to aid the cheerleaders.

It was also the club, along with various business organizations, that gave the visiting Drakes a reception that few of them will ever forget. The Drakes met the mayor and city council; they were presented with the keys to the city; they were driven through the streets in open cars; they were the guests of honor at a civic luncheon attended by 75 local people.

There were no hotel bills presented to the Drakes at the end of their stay. Neither did they pay for many of their meals. A Fort William cafe that normally closes Sundays opened its doors for the special occasion and treated the visitors to a steak dinner.

All in all, it was something to be long treasured by team members. But perhaps the best tribute of all paid to the Drakes was the statement that, of all the many teams that yearly visit the city, the Oak Bay club was the most gentlemanly and well-behaved group yet.

Caldwell Fired As Rider Coach

OTTAWA (BUP)—The Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four Football League have fired coach Chan Caldwell at the close of one of the most disastrous seasons in the club's history.

Caldwell, 35, a former assistant coach at the University of Tennessee, had served eight months of a two-year contract.

Charles Loses

PROVIDENCE (UP)—Toxie Hall, Chicago fighter who once decked heavyweight Rocky Marciano during a sparring drill, set back Ezzard Charles' hopes for a crack at the crown when he won a 10-round split decision over the former titleholder Monday night at Rhode Island auditorium.

Straths Cancel Practice

Officials of Strathcona's Coast Soccer League team announced last night that the club will not hold a practice at Royal Athletic park tonight as previously scheduled. A practice will be held Thursday night, weather permitting.

No Break in Weather Expected at Edmonton For Playoff Tomorrow

EDMONTON (CP) — In adverse weather "it's all a matter of how the breaks go," says coach Frank "Pop" Ivy of Edmonton Eskimos as he prepares his charges for Wednesday night's second game of the best-of-three Western Interprovincial Football Union final with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

And the forecaster isn't promising any breaks in the weather.

"Zero or slightly below that with no great amount of wind and no snow," is the weather office's prediction for game time.

"Bad weather is always a great equalizer," Ivy said Monday as he refused with an "absolutely not" reply to make any prediction on the outcome of the game.

A victory would send Eskimos into their second-straight Grey Cup final and give them a chance Nov. 26 at Vancouver to win their second consecutive championship — something no western team has ever done.

The Esks won the first game of the WIFU final Friday, whipping Bombers 29-6 on windswept Winnipeg Stadium's frozen field. If a third game is necessary, it will be played here Saturday night.

"It's always tough to play under adverse weather conditions," said Ivy. "It's a matter of how the breaks go. We got them down there at Winnipeg, they didn't."

Coach Al Sherman of Bombers said his club made too many mistakes Friday.

"It wasn't so much the physical fatigue," he said. "More mental fatigue. We weren't crisp in our thinking. We weren't rocking."

Sherman said he thought Bombers still had a chance to win the first game when the score was 16-6 for Eskimos "but there's a point in every game when a team gets that extra marker and it's time to go home."

"That 41-yard touchdown run of Johnny Bright's did the trick," he said.

Neither club has reported any serious injuries Bombers ran through 30-minute drills in the snow at Winnipeg Sunday and Monday and leave this afternoon for Edmonton.

"That field is like concrete," Ivy said. "There'll be a lot of bruleses Wednesday."

The icy field brought injury to all-star linebacker Ted Tully, who slipped during practice and bruised his knee. Ivy said he expects Tully to be ready for Wednesday night but he's not certain.

WHL President Cracks Down; Three Fined

Al Leader, president of the Western Hockey League, is cracking down on players who get a bit loose-tongued when talking to game officials.

Two players have been fined $100 for "unsportsmanlike conduct" during games at Victoria. One was former Cougar Ed Dorohoy, who drew two misconduct penalties during Seattle's last visit here. The other was Vic Lynn of the Saskatoon Quakers, who also received two misconduct penalties during a game at Memorial Arena. Lynn and Dorohoy drew their misconduct penalties for uncomplimentary remarks to referees.

Gordie Hudson of Vancouver Canucks contributed $50 to the league for a match penalty handed out at Vancouver last week when he swung his stick at Doug Adam of New Westminster Royals.

Top B.C. Race Horse Destroyed After Race

B.C. horsemen and racing fans were saddened over the weekend by the death of Quality Quest, perhaps the best thoroughbred ever bred in the province.

The four-year-old grey gelding had to be destroyed after it suffered a triple fracture at Tanforan on Saturday. Quality Quest was out in front of a strong field in the $10,000 Peninsula Handicap when he broke down.

It's reported that three X-rays were taken before owner Bill Wellburn of Ladner and trainer Jackie Russell were convinced that the horse couldn't be saved. X-rays showed that the main bone in the right front leg was badly shattered.

Quality Quest was born because of sentiment. Wellburn bought Ynomis, an old-time favorite on B.C. tracks, for about $100 chiefly to save the old mare from becoming fox meat. He bred her to Over Drive, by Silver Chord, and the result was Quality Quest, named in a newspaper contest.

Quality Quest started twice as a two-year-old, winning once and placing once. As a three-year-old, he won six in a row during the 1954 season, and this year Quality Quest came on to become one of the most-talked-about horses on the west coast, a horse that might have developed into one of the best on the continent.

Competing in the Longacres Mile against some of the best handicap horses from California, Quality Quest, ridden by Willie Hardtack, won in the fine time of 1.34.2. That is the best time turned in so far this year, on the North American continent at least.

Later, Quality Quest won the Governor's and Bremerton Handicaps at Longacres. Shipped to California, the handsome grey horse started off by beating some top-notch California sprinters in a $5,000 handicap. He was making his second California start Saturday when he broke down after looking like a winner.

How far he could have gone will never be answered, but Quality Quest seemed able to rise to the challenge of better competition. After the Longacres Mile, Hartack, leading rider in the U.S. this season, said: "He's as good a horse as I've ridden. He'll run with the best."

Quality Quest had won about $40,000.

Fights 240-Pounder

Ewart 'Trim' at 320 Pounds

LONDON (AP)—Ewart Potgeiter, South African heavyweight who is so big he sleeps in a six-legged bed, expects to weigh a trim 320 pounds tonight when he meets James J. Parker, Canadian cowboy-lumberjack fist fighter.

Parker, of Barrie, Ont., is a flip of a fellow at 224 pounds.

The seven-foot, two-inch, 21-year-old South African is being promoted by Jack Solomons, who has one of the sharpest minds in boxing and who is assisting Potgeiter's career in the matter of finding suitable opponents. Solomons practically controls big boxing in Britain.

Thus far Solomons, a team of managers, trainers and sparring partners have been unable to make Potgeiter in his nine professional rights into anything like a light dancing dandy. The big farmer's main offensive weapon still is to lift—not throw or hook—his 15½ inch fist and then lean forward.

However, his two London victims found plenty of time to step out of the way of knockout blows. They lost to Potgeiter through a retirement and RSF—referee stopped fight. Neither looked much the worse for wear after losing.

U.S. Coach Admits Error In Track Record Hassle

NEW YORK (AP) — Coach Rut Walter of Northwestern University admitted Saturday he erred in applying for recognition of a world record matching 9.3 seconds for the 100 yards by sprinter Jim Golliday. This was reported by secretary Dan Ferris of the Amateur Athletic Union. Golliday actually did 9.2, his coach and Ferries now agree.

"I discussed the matter with Walter," Ferris said, "and he acknowledged that, due to an oversight, the wrong time was submitted.

"Here is actually what happened. There were four timers, three regulars and one alternate. The alternate's time is considered only when that of one of the regulars is in doubt. In this case two of the three regular timers caught Golliday at 9.2. The other had it at 9.3. So did the alternate.

"Through an oversight, one of the regular timers, who timed Golliday at 9.2, was listed as the alternate while the alternate, who had a 9.3 time, was listed as a regular. We caught the error and corrected it. It was an honest mistake and I think everything now is straightened out to everybody's satisfaction."

Trafton Asks for Job As B.C. Lions Coach

George Trafton, who took Winnipeg Blue Bombers to the Grey Cup in 1953 and during that Western Interprovincial Football Union season carried on a feud with officials of the B.C. Lions, claims he would like to return to Canadian football as head coach of the Lions.

In a dispatch from Los Angeles to the Vancouver Sun Trafton is quoted as saying: "This is one of the few times in my life that I've ever applied personally for a coaching job."

Lions have received several applications for the coaching position left vacant when Annis Stukus was fired, and there was also a recent rumor that Frank Filchock, present coach of the Saskatchewan Roughriders, had applied for the job.

The story also says that seven top members of UCLA's powerpacked Rose Bowl-bound team may go to Lions as a unit. The group: Sam Davenport, Hardiman Cureton, Doug Peters, Jim Brown, Gill Moreno and Roumie Loudd.

In addition, two of the season's great collegiate pro prospects, Chuck Griffiths and Leon Clarke of California, are reported Vancouver-bound.

Remember When:

Ottawa Rough Riders won the Big Four football title 30 years ago today by beating Hamilton Tigers 8-3 at Ottawa. That was Ottawa's first league championship since 1909, and they went on to capture the Grey Cup by disposing of Queen's University and then beating Winnipeg Tammany Tigers 24-1 in the Canadian final.

SUNDAY SCORES

New York 17, Baltimore 7.
Chicago Bears 24, Los Angeles 3.
Washington 7, San Francisco 0.
Philadelphia 13, Cleveland 17.
Green Bay 31, Chicago Cards 14.

Results Sunday left the races in both the eastern and western sections of the National Football League closer than ever with every likelihood that they won't be decided until the last week of the season.

Defeat of the Cleveland Browns, who had won six in a row after losing their first game, gave both Washington Redskins and Pittsburg Steelers a chance in the Eastern Conference and defeat of the Los Angeles Rams made the Western Conference a four-team race.

EARLY LEAD

Browns scored 17 points in the first quarter and seemed well on their way, but Philadelphia Eagles, who had won only twice previously, took over from there to win, 33-17.

Quarterback Adrian Burk threw two touchdown passes and scored once in addition to calling a fine game which befuddled Cleveland's usually strong defence.

Meanwhile, the Redskins "stole" a game from San Francisco, 7-0. The only touchdown was set up when Gene Brito, with Calgary Stampeders of the WIFU last season, knocked the ball out of quarterback Y. A. Tittle's hands and gained possession on the 49ers' 33-yard line. Three plays later, the Redskins had the touchdown.

LIONS WIN

Pittsburg lost its third in a row, to Detroit's resurgent Lions, 31-28, but the Steelers have a great chance to get up to the top. Browns have a 6-2 record, the Redskins are 5-3 and the Steelers are 4-4. Through a quirk in the schedule, the Steelers play both Cleveland and Washington twice in the remaining four games.

In the eastern section, Chicago Bears won their fifth in a row after starting off by losing their first three games. The Bears trimmed the Los Angeles Rams, 24-3, to gain a tie for the section lead. Each club has a 5-3 record, one game ahead of Baltimore Colts and Green Bay Packers.

Russian Soccer Team May Play in Canada

WINNIPEG (BUP) — A Scottish and a Russian soccer team probably will tour Canada next summer.

George Anderson of Winnipeg, secretary-treasurer of the Football Association of Canada, announced Sunday that the FAC's council met here during the weekend to consider applications for a team or teams to tour Canada during the summer of 1956.

He said Moscow Dynamo or Spartak championship teams and Aberdeen football club, championship Scottish team, have indicated willingness to make the 1956 Canadian tour.

A series of games between Aberdeen and one of the two Russian teams will highlight the tour if suitable arrangements can be made, Anderson said. Present plans call for a four-game series between the Russians and Aberdeen at Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Jock Hendry of Vancouver, president of the Football Associatin of Canada, said "bringing a Russian organization here would be one of the greatest things to happen in Canada." He said the Football Association of Canada had been "negotiating for years to have the Dynamos visit us."

Bruins Battle Wings to Tie; Punchless Leafs Beaten, 4-1

Detroit	17	3	7	7	34	38	13
Toronto	17	3	10	3	26	48	12

Sunday scores: Montreal 3 at Chicago 0. Toronto 1 at New York 4. Detroit 0 at Boston 0.
Next games, tomorrow: Montreal at Toronto, Detroit at New York.

No verdict is yet in on the big trade which shipped goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk, rated by many as the real backbone of the Detroit Red Wings, to the Boston Bruins.

Bruins are currently better off than the Wings with 17 points from 15 games while the Stanley Cup champions, who have won only three times, show 13 points from 17 games. However, there is no proof that the replacement of Sawchuk with Glen Hall is the reason for the difference.

Sawchuk has been very good, allowing only 27 goals in 15 games and getting three shutouts, but Hall has had some moments, too. The former Edmonton goalkeeper, has given up 36 goals in 17 games and has three blankings to his credit.

THIRD SHUTOUT

His third came Sunday when the Wings and Bruins, meeting for the second time this season, played to a 0-0 tie. The clubs have failed to score in their two games with the first meeting also a scoreless draw.

Both goalkeepers were good Sunday, Sawchuk handling 31 shots and Hall not making a miss on 29 shots. The split moved the Wings into fifth place, one point ahead of Toronto.

The Maple Leafs continued to drop down the standings by getting trimmed, 4-1, at New York by the ambitious Rangers. It extended the Leafs' winless streak through a sixth game and their losing streak to five games. Leafs, who have scored only 26 goals in 17 games, have scored only four times in their last five games.

Western Hockey League grass again sparked the Rangers. Goalie Lorne Worsley had a goal and three assists and Larry Popein had a goal and two assists.

HABS WIN

In Sunday's other game, Montreal Canadiens stayed five points in front of the Rangers by blanking the Black Hawks, 2-0, at Chicago. It was the second shutout in two nights for goalie Jacques Plante, who now has five in 17 games and a fair margin over Sawchuk in the scrap for the Vezina Trophy.

Maurice Richard cashed in on a neat passing play with kid brother Henri and Dickie Moore for the first Montreal goal. Jean Beliveau drove a 30-foot blazer past Al Rollins for the insurance goal.

Dynamos Edge Sunderland XI

SUNDERLAND, England (AP)—Inside left Vladimir Ilyin scored for Moscow Dynamo four minutes from the end and gave the Russians a 1-0 victory over Sunderland, English League leaders, in a floodlit soccer match before a sellout crowd of 55,000 Monday night.

It was the second game of Dynamo's visit. They lost, 2-1, to Wolverhampton Wanders last Wednesday.

The Russians were down the British side shortly before half time and then piled on the pressure in the second half. Ilyin's goal came after the Sunderland defence had conceded several corners in desperate bids to keep the Russians

GM Features Wall Street Stock Gains

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market drove ahead in one of the strongest advances of the year Monday.

Blue chip stocks were in the forefront of the rise with gains that frequently amounted to one to five points and sometimes pushed on to around eight points.

General Motors, whose three-for-one split was effective Wednesday, was at the top of the most active list, followed by U.S. Steel.

Papers Buoyant

TORONTO (CP)—The firm undertone that has marked stock market dealings for almost two weeks was evident again Monday.

A strong paper section led industrials forward. Other leading groups were motors, liquors, manufacturers and miscellaneous issues. Individual advances ranged to $5 by International Paper, at $115.

Senior base metals were strong, led by International Nickel, up $1.

Thompson-Lundmark, up 25 to $1.75, was among better issues in a mixed golds group. A few uraniums moved ahead small amounts. Gunnar dipped ½. Ventures led improved holding companies with a $1.75 advance.

Metal Stocks Strong

MONTREAL (CP) — The stock market was irregularly stronger at the close of moderately active trading Monday.

An outstanding feature was General Motors, climbing 4⅝ points to a new high of 54.

Aluminum moved up 2¾ and International Nickel gained 1⅝.

Basco Oil Gains

VANCOUVER — Basco Oil advanced strongly to 78 cents in a busier oil section. Vantor at 1.11. Yankee Princess at 85 cents and Sparmac at 38 cents closed below their best.

Canadian Collieries was strong at 13¾. Bralorne was higher at $5.25 while B.C. Forest Products closed at $16.25.

London Rallies

LONDON (Reuters) — London stock markets opened the week with steady progress in quiet trading, with sentiment again influenced by the Wall street tone and more favorable October trade figures.

There was selective demand for industrials, with Ford a featured leader on reported American buyers. Good gains were recorded in steels, tobaccos and breweries. The dollar stocks reflected Friday's Wall street advance.

Coppers and oils improved.

Flax uncovered further export demand and there were reports that small lots had been sold to the Continent. Prices were firm. Little feature appeared in rye which followed trends in U.S. markets.

CHICAGO (AP)—Corn eased under the weight of heavy cash grain receipts on the board of trade.

During the early part of the session all other grains turned down with corn. But there wasn't any heavy pressure and toward the finish wheat and rye had recovered just about all their lost ground.

Family Homeless As Rural House Gutted by Fire

PORT ALBERNI—A rural home was completely destroyed by fire and volunteer firemen of the Twin Cities have been kept busy by numerous small fires which broke out during the cold weather since Friday.

The family of John Van der Broek was left homeless when a spark ignited material used to insulate water pipes and flames swept up the side of his small frame house opposite Stamp Falls about on Beaver Creek road.

* * *

The house was destroyed within a few minutes. Loss has been estimated at $5,000, partly covered by insurance.

Over-stoking was said to be one cause of a number of chimney fires which kept firemen hopping.

* * *

THETIS ISLAND—Tragedy was averted in heavy seas Friday when Chemainus fisherman Bob Miller was rescued between Thetis Island and Chemainus after his fishboat was swamped.

Rescuer was Roy Couch of Thetis Island in the Rose N, who picked Miller up shortly after the accident.

The fishboat floated submerged and attempts were being made to salvage it over the weekend.

* * *

NANAIMO—A vacant four-room house owned by William Harvey of Nanaimo was totally destroyed by fire Sunday night one day before it was to have received new occupants.

James Penney and his family planned to move into the house Monday after renting from Mr. Harvey. A six-man volunteer fire-fighting crew arrived too late to save the house.

Cause of the blaze is believed to have been a wood stove left banked in an attempt to heat the house for the new occupants.

* * *

COURTENAY—A new method of billing residents quarterly for water and garbage disposal has been adopted by city council and will go into effect February, 1956.

* * *

NANAIMO—Albert Scott of Parksville was wounded in the leg when hunting at North West Bay yesterday.

It is understood that the accident happened when Scott's companion's gun exploded when he tripped over a cable.

Water Supply Cut In Nanaimo Area

NANAIMO—Trouble at the South Forks dam on Nanaimo river has cut Nanaimo's water supply to 40 per cent.

C. F. Newcombe, chief commissioner of Greater Nanaimo water district stated yesterday that the possibility of an underwater slide may be the cause of the trouble.

Arrangements have been made for a local diver George Knight, to survey the cause and make necessary repairs. But almost three inches of ice on the water and the consequent danger of air lines freezing has delayed diving operations.

Fear of frozen pipes with consumers running their taps 24 hours a day has more than doubled normal water consumption in Nanaimo.

Mr. Newcombe reports that No. 1 reservoir is down by two and a half feet below normal with the level dropping rapidly.

An appeal has been made to water consumers to exercise economy in the use of water for every purpose and particularly that no taps be left running.

"The situation is not critical," Mr. Newcombe said, "but a prolonged cold spell will bring a real emergency as fire protection as well as domestic supply will be seriously affected."

A rash of fires kept Nanaimo firemen busy over the weekend.

Nature—Society Supports Mayor In Thetis Veto

The Victoria Natural History Society added another letter yesterday to the file Mayor Claude L. Harrison is preparing to support his veto of council's action in calling tenders for Thetis lake logging.

[illegible] his veto at the next council meeting. It will delay action [illegible] period.

The Victoria Natural History Society letter, signed by C. W. Lowe, president, and Helen Baird secretary, said that "we desire to point out to the city council that Thetis lake with its unspoiled surrounding forest land is a most desirable park-land area and sure to become increasingly popular as the city grows.

"The society therefore urges the council to preserve the area from any form of logging that no views from the lake or from any of the surrounding rock bluffs be altered by such logging and that no form of forest growth be unnecessarily disturbed."

Mayor Harrison also said yesterday he might veto council's resolution of last Thursday asking for a referendum in December asking voters if they favor borrowing $300,000 for 10 years to build a new Point Ellice bridge.

A veto on this action would rule out any chance of the referendum being held in connection with the civic elections Dec. 8.

Admiral Stresses History

Part played by the navy in the growth of Victoria from its earliest days was stressed yesterday by Rear Adm. Hugh F. Pullen, flag officer Pacific Coast, when he addressed Victoria Gyro Club.

"Today the Canadian navy is a multi-million dollar development providing direct employment to several thousand workers," he said. "By virtue of this growth, shipbuilding and allied industries on the coast are all affected to varying degrees."

He traced the parallel growth of the navy with that of Vancouver Island.

"Today, sharing the same ideals as in the service and our gentle men in your civilian undertakings are all the part in Canada's growth," Admiral Pullen said.

Court Won't Judge Miscegenation Law

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Supreme Court refused Monday to rule on the constitutionality of state laws which prohibit marriages between white and non white persons.

The court sent a test case back to the Virginia Supreme Court on grounds that the record was incomplete. The state court had upheld the validity of Virginia's miscegenation law.

A retrial will now take place in Portsmouth, Va. Then the case undoubtedly will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court again. Twenty seven other states have such laws.

In another action dealing with race relations, the high court left standing a lower court decision which forbade Oklahoma to list the race of Negro candidates on election ballots.

The Supreme Court rejected Oklahoma's appeal in a brief order.

The marriage case was initiated by Mrs. Ruby Elaine Naim, white woman, of Norfolk, Va., who sought an annulment of her marriage to a Chinese-American, Hay Say Naim.

Her husband contested the suit.

Breaks Down Under Grilling

Lad Told White Lie To Spare Mother

CHICAGO (UP) — A 13-year-old friend of Chicago's three murdered boys feathery confessed today that he cooked up a wild story of assault and abduction "to give some hope to a heart-broken mother."

Tom Fijak, a Boy Scout comrade and honorary pallbearer of two of the slain boys, walked into sheriff's police headquarters late yesterday and announced he had "told a big lie."

A six-foot man had forced his way into his home, but from over the head and taken him on a three-hour car ride, border ing the forest preserve where the bodies were found, Fijak said.

But after hours of intensive questioning the young Boy Scout broke down and admitted it was all a lie, a white one he insisted.

Brandon Murder Trial

Self-Confessed Slayer Sane, Psychiatrists Tell Jury

BRANDON, Man. (BUP) — Trial of three Montreal district youths, charged with the 10 for month-old murder of Father Alfred Quirion, resumed today after being highlighted by dramatic developments yesterday when two psychiatrists called [illegible] testified that in their opinions Guy Ferragne, self-confessed triggerman in the slaying, was and is sane.

Dr. T. A. Pincock, the provincial psychiatrist, testified that Ferragne, though a schizoid personality, was neither legally insane nor a paranoic schizophrenic at the time he was alleged to have fired shots that killed the 45-year-old Roman Catholic priest of St. Edouard, Alta.

Ferragne, self-confessed triggerman in the slaying, along with Gerard de Tonnancourt and Claude Paquin, had been arrested and charged with the murder a few hours after Father Quirion's body was found in his car on the highway near here last Jan. 9.

Dr. Edward Johnson, superintendent of the Selkirk hospital for mental diseases, testified that in his opinion the accused Ferragne was and is sane.

Both doctors gave evidence that they said was based on interviews with relatives and acquaintances of the accused, on observations during the past few days in and out of the court room, on an attempted interview with Ferragne, and on evidence presented during the trial.

Dr. Robert Genest, a Montreal psychiatrist who examined Ferragne after the commence[illegible] ment of the trial, was expected to be recalled today as a court's witness.

Genest, called by defence counsel Harry Walsh late last week, had testified that Ferragne "certainly was insane" at [illegible]

Faure Faces Trouble

PARIS (UP) — The Senate election committee Monday recommended another amendment to the government election bill striking a severe blow at Premier Edgar Faure's hopes for December general elections.

The committee voted [illegible] of district-type [illegible] sections and send the measure back to the senate. The senate is expected to pass the amended bill and send it back to the [illegible].

That would mean a [illegible] in his debate on an election [illegible] hopes to stage [illegible] was running out on the premier.

Faure must win agreement between the senate and the assembly on the election bill and on the form the elections will take by Saturday if France is to go to the polls on schedule.

The constitution requires a five-week wait between the calling of elections and the actual vote.

But Faure's chances were considered slim following Saturday's national assembly vote of confidence which he won only with the support of Communist deputies.

His national assembly majority is in a shambles now that he has lost the support of the majority of his own Radical-Socialist Party, now lined up behind former premier Pierre Mendes-France.

False Teeth Often Have a Certain Odor!

Soak your plates in Polident daily to avoid "Denture Breath"

Polident is the specially designed cleanser that keeps false teeth and breath clean and fresh always. Follow these simple rules:

1 Never use a brush on them! Your dental plates are much softer than natural teeth. Brushing wears down fitting ridges so they get loose.

2 Never use soap or toothpaste! They can leave film which collects bacteria and food particles, a major cause of offensive "Denture Breath."

3 Use a soaking-type cleanser made for false teeth only . . . Polident! Polident is the denture cleanser recommended by more dentists than any other. No brushing, no handling of soapy plates that can slip and break. Polident gets where a brush can't reach. Best of all, Polident always leaves false teeth odor-free. Get the world's largest selling denture cleanser, Polident, at your drug counter.

Put an end to start-and-stall driving!

TCP, and a new de-icer work together to end the worst of your winter driving problems.

TCP overcomes power-wasting engine deposits—gives full winter power when you need it. And a special de-icer never before in Shell gasolines gives you freedom from winter stalling.

As you start up on damp days, when the temperature may be between 30° and 50°F—moisture from the air condenses in the carburetor where it's chilled by evaporating gasoline and freezes inside the carburetor. This blocks the flow of gasoline. You stall, then you have to start again. Then, you can stall a second time or even several times before there's enough heat under the hood to prevent carburetor icing.

With Shell's new de-icer—ice crystals from the air/fuel mixture will not clog the carburetor in your car. Fill up with Shell Premium Gasoline or Shell Gasoline—enjoy the advantages of Shell's new de-icer and TCP.

'No Discipline Here! Get Out'

U.S. photographers and newsmen were given a sample of the old-fashioned military discipline practised by Britain's Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery when he held a press conference in Washington. Montgomery, famous for his insistence on correct deportment, turned on photographers who forgot whom they were dealing with. The photo shown here was snapped just as the field marshal ordered the cameramen out of the room with the words "No discipline here. Get out! Let's have some discipline." The cameramen scooted.—(Central Press Canadian)

Man Shoots Wife, In-Laws and Self

GROESBECK, Tex. (UP)—A truck driver, who beat up his pregnant wife but was outraged when her family filed charges against him, killed the wife, 23, her father, 62, her uncle, 64, and himself on the Limestone county courthouse lawn with a shotgun yesterday.

The truck driver, Guy Andrews, Jr., is almost got his mother-in-law, Mrs. E. Bernard Bryant. But while he chased away, she darted across the lawn, shrieking, "Save me, help" climbed through the county superintendent of education's office window and escaped.

Andrews and his wife were estranged. She left him about three months ago, after the beating, and went to stay with her parents in Houston, Tex.

Her family charged him with assault with intent to murder. he was out of jail on $5,000 bail and the grand jury considered his case yesterday.

The victims came up from Houston, to the south yesterday, and testified before the grand jury. Andrews hid himself on the courthouse lawn behind a bush with a pump gun in his arms.

As his wife, mother-in-law, father-in-law and the uncle came walking down the side walk from the courthouse after their testimony, he waited until they were about 12 feet from him and started shooting. The bodies crumpled on the sidewalk.

Mrs. Bryant started running the moment the shooting started, but the others didn't have a chance.

Famed Playwright
Robert Sherwood Dead

NEW YORK (UP) - Robert Emmett Sherwood, playwright, historian and confidant of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, died today two days after suffering a coronary thrombosis. He was 59.

He was rushed to New York hospital where his condition was reported improved late Saturday. He suffered a set back at about noon yesterday and his condition steadily worsened.

Sherwood was regarded as one of the leading playwrights of the 20th century. He turned out a number of highly successful scripts, many of them dealing with political matters.

One of Sherwood's most successful writings was his "Roosevelt and Hopkins: an Intimate History." That volume was highly regarded as a definitive political biography and won Sherwood a Pulitzer Prize for history. It also brought him the Bancroft Prize for history.

Earlier he had been honored for three plays. "Idiot's Delight" in 1936, Abe Lincoln in Illinois" in 1938, and "There Shall Be No Night" in 1940.

Prairie Farm Minister Would Trade with Devil

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Manitoba cabinet minister said Monday he would agree to sell wheat to the devil himself if it can be sold.

Agriculture Minister Ron Robertson tossed in that remark as he emphasized before the Gordon economic commission the crucial need of the Prairies to find speedy markets for a huge wheat surplus.

There also is an urgent need, he said, to consolidate efforts to search to find uses for wheat other than the conventional flour and bread.

Mr. Robertson recalled that the federal government has used legislation recently to sell surplus wheat to Communist Poland on credit. He agreed with that sale. He wanted the federal administration to make more of such sales on credit, behind the Iron Curtain or anywhere else.

He would agree with the federal official who once told him he would sell wheat to the devil himself if it can be sold. Mr. Robertson declined to name the federal official but said that was his own view, too.

No End Seen To Wheat Rust

TORONTO (CP)—The struggle for survival of Canada's wheat industry is effectively demonstrated in a federal department of agriculture exhibit at the Royal Winter Fair.

Departmental wheat authorities attending the exhibit believe the fight against wheat rust will never be won through development of resistant qualities in the wheat plant. New types of rust will always emerge.

Frederick Gleler, in charge of the wheat section in the cereal division of the central Canada experimental farm, said he believes complete victory over rust lies in a study of the nature of the fungi. Through this antibiotics or chemicals which would kill rust germs when sprayed on wheat fields, perhaps could be invented, he said.

What's news at Inco?

Towing highly sensitive instruments from an aeroplane, Inco's air prospectors have been able to locate promising mineral deposits hidden beneath the earth's surface. Then by referring to a continuous strip of photographs taken from the plane, they can point out likely areas to be worked by ground prospectors.

INCO TROLLS FOR MINERALS FROM AN AEROPLANE

Present-day prospectors have new and valuable partners in the air. Equipped with special instruments, an aeroplane can troll for minerals over vast areas in the course of a few hours. A prospector, travelling by canoe or on foot, would have taken months—perhaps years—to cover the same territory.

In the past twenty-five years, science has developed new methods for probing the earth for minerals. The magnetometer, a device which measures local variations in the earth's magnetic field, is useful in many ways. In addition, several other devices in general use are employed by Inco in the search for sulphide ores—the ores which are most likely to contain nickel and copper deposits worth developing.

At Inco, airborne prospectors, assisted by a special research organization, have already covered more than 40,000 square miles in air surveys of Canada's potential ore resources.

Inco's findings have helped maintain Canada's position of leadership in the production of nickel.

Through continuing research and utilization of the latest developments of science, Inco helps bring new wealth to Canada.

Oakalla Fugitives Get Added Terms

VANCOUVER (BUP) — The four men who escaped from Oakalla prison 10 days ago were each sentenced to additional two-year terms Monday on charges of escaping from lawful custody.

The sentences were imposed against John Wasylenchuk, Robert Lewis, Harold Coulirer and Carl Lavictoire. Wasylenchuk told Magistrate C. C. Bell that he led the Nov. 4 jail break in desperation because his appeal from a life imprisonment term had been rejected. Lewis was serving 10 years on a bank robbery charge, and the other two men were awaiting trial on charges of bank robbery.

Wasylenchuk pleaded guilty when he appeared in court Monday after earlier reserving his plea. The other three men had pleaded guilty last week.

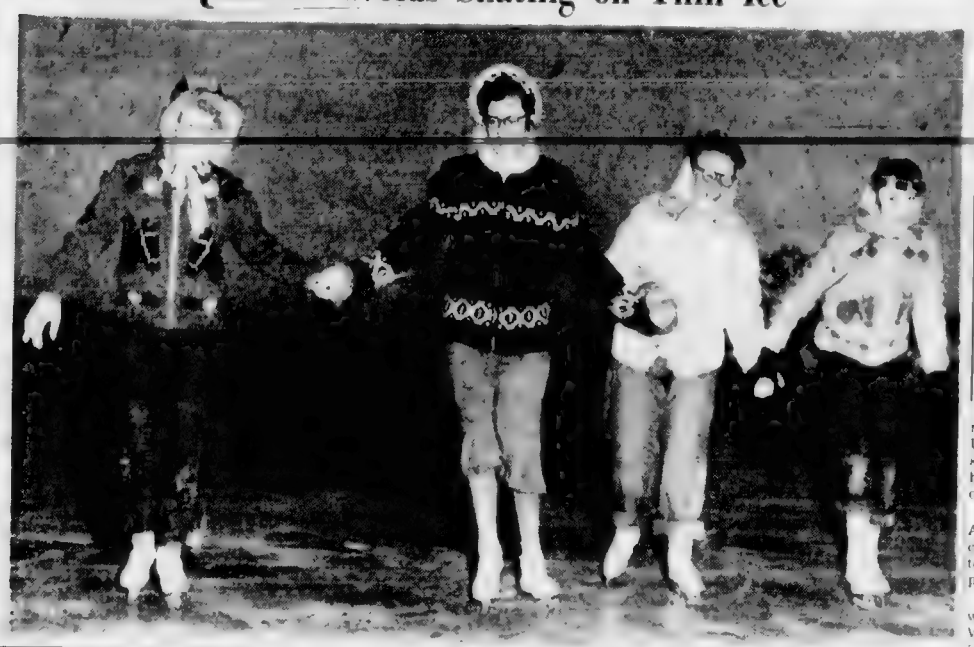
Quartet Avoids Skating on Thin Ice



Some ice is safe, some is not, police warned skaters yesterday. But Sharon Brown 13, Carol di Castri, 13, Barb Stanington, 10, and Christie Usher, 11, found the ideal spot at Roger's pond, just off the Patricia Bay highway. There were hockey players on the same sheet of ice. There were skaters on the fringes of Portage Inlet, too, but police say the ice is not safe. Goodacre lake in Beacon Hill park is not fit for skating, either. In fact, police warn it is better to stay off any ice over deep water. Holland Point model yacht pool was flooded yesterday to provide skating today.

Transport Picture Brightens; Ferry Parley Here Wednesday

The long campaign to bring adequate ferry service back to the Victoria-Port Angeles run and to improve southern Vancouver Island's connection with the mainland through Sidney saw two developments yesterday which officials here feel may be significant.

Officials of Union Steamships Limited met here Wednesday with Victoria Chamber of Commerce ferry committee to discuss plans for a fast service between Sidney and the Mainland.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Maritime Commission has informed Mayor Claude L. Harrison that it is studying his representations on the need for federal aid in re-establishing ferry service between Victoria and Port Angeles.

L. C. Audette, chairman of the maritime commission, told the mayor in a letter: "Your representations are being examined by the commission and I hope to be able to write to you again very shortly."

Mayor Harrison wrote to the commission on Nov. 4, saying that some time ago he had taken up with the prime minister the question of Dominion non-compliance with certain terms of union between British Columbia and Canada particularly the one promising freight and passenger ship service to Ocean Falls.

The mayor referred the ship problem to the end of the last summer withdrawal of the Black Ball ferry to Port Angeles, the aid given by the State of Washington in putting the Kalakala on the run, and withdrawal of CPR service and the Kalakala at the end of September.

"Victoria representatives went to Port Angeles and saw the State Ferries, begging them to give us a service for next year as Canada has not," the mayor said.

Private Ship Unlikely

"Then a private citizen of the city to a specified company in U.S.A. said he would try to get where it feels such a thing would a ship built etc., for the trade be in the national interest. If We now find it most unlikely that he will have a ship ready in time for next tourist season and we have to try again the States.

"I assure you it is a most unfortunate and to me embarrassing situation, to say the least."

The loss, the mayor said, "is very heavy to us."

He quoted customs figures to show that the traffic loss this year was more than 2,000 cars.

Mayor Harrison recalled that Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier had written to him Dec. 20, 1952.

"I regret to say I do not feel able to recommend at this time any form of federal government sponsorship for the new service you advocate. If however, you would care to forward any economic or other evidence in support of your proposals I should be glad to examine the matter further."

He also noted that Prime Minister St. Laurent had told him this September: "The Canadian Maritime Commission is making a constant study of shipping requirements on both coasts and from time to time recommends action to the federal government such as a subsidy where it feels such action would be in the national interest. If the commission in future should make any recommendation with respect to the steamship service between Victoria and a port in the State of Washington, I assure you it will receive the most careful consideration of my colleagues and myself."

Chamber of Commerce president G. Fitzpatrick Dunn will lead the ferry committee to meet Union Steamships' J. F. Ells, general manager, T. G. Denny, J. R. Genge, Capt. W. R. Starey, G. H. Wheaton, G. C. Parrott, G. I. Warren and Hector Cromble are chamber committee members.

Mr. Ellis told the chamber by telephone yesterday he has studied the report of the ferry situation prepared some time ago by the chamber of commerce and said that his analysis of the situation closely parallels the chamber's research.

The chamber has suggested a four trip daily service with a fast new general purpose ferry type ship to carry passengers and any kind of wheeled traffic including large freight carrying motor vehicles.

It proposes the service should operate between Swartz Bay and Steveston or White Rock.

Mr. Ellis has stated that his company is interested in providing year round service.

Picket Lines Ignored

Pickets of the striking International Operating Engineers' Union (AFL-TLC) ignored at some Vancouver Island points have gone back to 24-hour duty on their lines.

In Port Alberni last night the AFL union representatives called an emergency meeting. International representatives were present.

Speculation was that they were perturbed at International Woodworkers of America CIO-CCL) alleged attempts to destroy the effectiveness of engineer picket lines.

Engineers numbering about 150 have attempted for a week past to picket 16 IS and all Mainland mills, striking for wage increases of 10 cents an hour.

At Youbou and Honeymoon Bay on Vancouver Island yesterday IWA millworkers were reported ignoring the picket lines. Following weekend meetings the IWA apparently maintains pickets are against out of the mills but the IWA members employed there.

At Honeymoon Bay mill workers are using side roads to avoid pickets at the main gates on Gordon river.

Production was normal in the mills at both Honeymoon Bay and Youbou.

Robert Strachan, Nanaimo M.L.A. chairman of a joint meeting at Chemainus Sunday where IWA, engineers and longshoremen gathered is expected to report shortly on proceedings to Harry Berger, Vancouver business agent of the engineers' union.

At Chemainus only partial employment is possible in the mill due to the engineers' strike.

The situation at Youbou appears unique. There IWA firemen who usually work along side T&C engineers have returned to their jobs following a weekend meeting.

Pickets are no longer on company property but they are maintaining their lines close in.

In Victoria T&C union has authorized striking engineers to return to McCarter's Shingle Mill and Smith's Cedar Products to maintain safety of equipment. Both plants are closed and pickets remain there.

Merchants Ask Baskets Back For Christmas

Victoria's famed hanging flower baskets may reappear next month—sprouting holly, evergreen and Christmas decorations.

The baskets were removed from city lamp posts only last month but the retail merchants group of the Chamber of Commerce want them up again in Christmas dress.

This "spirit" of a festive season plan which the retail merchants will ask chamber of commerce directors to approve.

Also under the plan would be a program of better illumination of city streets for the Christmas season and it is proposed that the Musicians' Union Band, the Sea Cadet Band, the bugles of the Queen's Own Rifles and the Salvation Army Band play Christmas carols in city street.

City merchants will be asked to brighten their store fronts for the Christmas season.

Parkland Tax Sale

Saanich Set To Fight Victoria in Lawsuit

Saanich council last night refused to withdraw its sale for taxes of city-owned Beaver lake-Elk lake lands and instructed its solicitors, Manzer and Wootton, to defend its action when the case goes to court.

In a letter to council Roy Manzer and Robert Wootton advised that "council resist any proceedings taken by the City of Victoria."

The solicitors said they are "of the opinion that the city property is taxable."

It was disclosed by Reeve Joseph Casey that Saanich had asked separate opinion of D. Marsh Gordon, QC who concurred with the opinions of Manzer and Wootton.

Council received and filed a letter from city solicitor A. J. Patton asking Saanich to withdraw the sale for taxes of the city-owned property.

COMPLAINS OF ACTION

Mr. Patton complained of the action of Saanich in offering the land for sale and claimed the property is not liable for taxation because it is a watershed area and was exempted from taxation by an act of 1955.

The city has until next September to redeem the property.

Comm. S. W. Brock pointed out the taxes assessed were for local improvements to provide a water main and said that if the city of Victoria didn't pay the taxes the ratepayers of Saanich would have to pay them.

80 ODD ACRES

Part of the property in dispute is the 80 odd acres which the city proposed to lease to the Island Golf Club Ltd. for use as a race track and fair grounds.

The Island Golf Club stated publicly on several occasions that it is prepared to pay full taxes on the property or grants to Saanich in lieu of taxes but didn't commit itself to establishment of a race track at the Beaver lake site.

Roads Office Fought

The Victoria Automobile Club has named R. B. Wilson and W. J. Cass to see the minister of highways to protest establishment of a new provincial office in Vancouver which would administer highways on Vancouver Island.

The club believes an office, under Mr. Gaglardi's new decentralization plan, should be established on Vancouver Island to manage the highways here.

The automobile club will also ask that slow traffic lanes be established on uphill grades of the Island highway between Langford and Mill Bay. These would be similar to a slow lane already established on the Goldstream stretch of the highway by Sunriple corner.

'Morning Debauchery'

Mount Tolmie Plan Finds Saanich Cool

Saanich council last night was cool to Victoria Chamber of Commerce proposal that the summit of Mount Tolmie be developed as a lookout point to include a tea room and more adequate parking facilities.

Council heard a letter from Ernest L. Larkin and other Mayfair drive residents protesting the suggested commercialization and improvement of the area.

It complained that already [illegible] bottles and other forms of "early morning debauchery" in that area have decreased property values.

Council will overstep in that letter. Development will only increase that condition, Coun. Ronald Grant said.

Reeve Joseph Casey was quick to point out that the army and navy establishment had provided the present parking facilities at Mount Tolmie.

"As the park belongs to Saanich all the Victoria-Saanich parks and beaches committee could do is to recommend to Saanich it be used for that purpose," he said.

Coun. George Austin pointed out the project has not yet been considered by the committee.

Eight-Foot Parlor Icicles One Plumber's Problem

Hard luck overtook 84-year-old Mrs. F. E. Steed, 1175 Chapman, who left a tap open to prevent freezing. In the morning she found the sink drain outlet had frozen. Water overflowed and iced up the floors.

Many people with summer homes were caught by the sudden freeze, reported plumber Alex Rawlings.

Eight-foot-long icicles hanging from a drawing room ceiling faced one city plumber yesterday.

At another house water overflowed from a frozen sink and formed a sheet of ice over the kitchen floor.

W. R. Menzies and Co. reported it began answering calls at 4 a.m. and kept busy until midnight.

"Some holiday," said plumber Dave Cooper, who worked until 10 p.m. Sunday.

"At one duplex on Cloverdale I found eight-foot icicles hanging from the ceiling. Water had been leaking from upstairs bath connections."

Phil Ballam had his first call Sunday at five a.m. and yesterday at 7 a.m.

"We've had more than 100 calls," said Mr. Ballam, "but it's not been too bad. I can remember worse freeze-ups."

"One of our calls was from a Mrs. Winter, living on Caledonia."

'New' Three-Hour Limit . . .

. . . Made Legal Five Years Ago

'Fantastic' Parking Law Flabbergasts Council

Officials who wondered yesterday who had ordered a three-hour parking limit on Blanchard street from Herald to Pembroke finally found out: city council did.

"Three hours parking?" exclaimed Ald. Arthur Dowell yesterday morning. "I've never heard of such a thing."

Alderman Dowell is chairman of city council's public works committee.

"That's all-day parking," said the acting city engineer, James C. Garnett. "There's been a mistake somewhere. We'll change it down right away."

Signs setting the three-hour limit were erected late last week along the centre strip of Arena Way. Two-hour signs from Herald south were left unchanged.

"We can't see anything about a three-hour limit in the by-law," said Norman Worsley, who succeeded to some of the duties of Robert Dobie, the city's former traffic engineer.

But later in the day, Joe Dukowski, manager of the Memorial Arena, said that "three hours parking" had been painted on the ground a year or so for the last four years and at the same time the city engineer's department found the five-year-old order.

It was contained, Mr. Garnett said, in a "fantastically written" 1950 by-law.

"We can't tell what area it means," he said, adding that public works committee will consider a clarifying by-law amendment.

Public works employees, he explained, had erected the new signs as part of a general cleaning up program.

'Not Exactly Friendly' Swan Calls on Major Davidson

A totally unexpected visitor called on Major C. Ross David son at Becher bay yesterday.

Major Davidson, [illegible] the city parks department to say that he had a swan in his kitchen.

When Parks Administrator W. H. Warren was satisfied that the swan had the red beak of a tame one—not the black beak of a wild one, he made arrangements to have it picked up and brought home to the city.

Major Davidson found the swan in a small pool on his property, took it into his kitchen and later put it in a chicken house to wait for the parks department truck.

"It wasn't exactly friendly, but it was tame all right," he said.

Mr. Warren said it was unusual for a swan to travel as far from Elk lake, its presumed starting point, to Becher bay.

Luxurious Furs Shown Here

"Emba Argenta," natural grey mutation mink, fashions both these models, a cape stole to the left, and jacket stole right. Both may be worn over a day-time cocktail dress or glamorous evening gown. They are among the models being shown at the Hudson's Bay Company this week.

All Canadian Mink Coats Compared to Rolls-Royce

Luxurious mink is the fur most women dream about even when they are well aware that their pocketbooks could never stand the strain. Just to look at the beautiful new colored mink is enough for most, and including the newest shade of mink to everyone has that opportunity this week at the Hudson's Bay Company

The showing of all Canadian mink furs opened yesterday at p.m. There are 20 models of the beautiful furs being shown and including the newest shade of everyone has that opportunity can recall in a mink stole for either day or evening wear

One of the most glamorous in the show is named Cavalier, a full-length model featuring a deep foldover of the fur at the neckline taken from the theme of the Elizabethean ruff. The sleeves also follow the court pattern and the border panels call to mind the Royal robe markings of the same era.

Sapphire mink fashions a breath-taking cape stole with a flattering portrait collar and slip pockets.

The prices of the stoles and short capes range from approximately $1,000 to $3,000, and the full length models hover around the $5,000 mark.

One of the most important fashion trends in fur garments for the coming season is the greatest modes. In fact, data many called autumn caper was of the newest trends, and gives the fashionable straight, tapered look.

The cavalcade which is on tour of Western Canada is sponsored by the Canada Mink Breeders with the co-operation of the Hudson's Bay Company.

The fur breeders think that although mink has long been associated as a luxury item, it should also be considered as a sound investment. The long-wearing qualities of mink are well known and might be compared to a Rolls-Royce car. They last for many years without losing their "tone."

Emba is the mutations and majestic in the dark run; mink is never dyed. The word mutatio in regard to mink means that it is a natural shade developed over the years by scientific crossbreeding.

As a standard to guide the public in their purchases the Canadian Mink Breeders joined the "Emba" group in the United States which encourages the raising of top quality mink.

Models in the show are Mary Rawnsley, Doris Usher and Sheila Morgan.

Warning—Never Teach a Woman To Shoot

JOHN WHEELER

NEW YORK — My grandfather, a wise old man, said to me when I was a boy:

"Never teach a woman to shoot."

I don't know whether he had ever been a target or not but he seemed to be very positive in his views. It's a sound axiom like that of W. C. Fields

"You can't cheat an honest man."

After I came back from the First World War, I brought home as a souvenir an army forty-five automatic. We lived in the country, and my wife said to me:

"Why don't you show me how to shoot it in case of burglars."

"No," I answered firmly, "I would rather have the robbers. Look what happened to Jack De Saulles."

He was one of the handsome figures in New York shortly after the turn of the century and had been an all-American quarterback on Yale. In due course, he took a trip to South America where he met a Latin beauty named Bianca, whom he married. Things went smoothly for a while and the couple had a son. Then the husband began to arch his neck at a popular dancer of the period, and the outcome was a divorce.

While the members of the partnership were speaking to each other during the brief, happy marriage, he had bought his wife a pistol and taught her how to use it. According to the divorce agreement, the time of the son was divided between the mother and father. Mr. De Saulles went to Bianca's home one evening to return his offspring and she greeted him with the six-shooter kissing him deader than a pickerel. Apparently she had been brooding about his past conduct.

At the time there was a firm of lawyers in Rockville Centre, Long Island, which specialized in defending widows who shot their husbands, either in anger or by accident. According to reliable reports, a client called up to announce her homicidal intentions one day and ask the great mouthpieces to take the case. She got this reply:

"You will have to put it off for a couple of months. We are up to our ears with business now."

Mrs. De Saulles engaged these attorneys. There was a conventional trial and she was acquitted in a blaze of glory. That night she gave a splendid coming-out party for her lawyers, the newspapermen who covered the show and the D.A. who prosecuted her. It was a social success.

As a boy, I remember one woman who was safe and a first-class shot, too. She was Annie Oakley who rode a horse and broke glass balls with her gun while in the saddle. She was in Buffalo Bill's wild west show. Incidentally, that is why complimentary tickets are named after her, because they are punched full of holes.

Ed Wynn, the comedian, used to have a gag we can work in here. Someone asked him how old a certain veteran actress was.

"I don't know," he answered "but a fellow once took a shot at her and killed President Lincoln."

This writer has been almost pinged twice—not by his wife but by lady hunters, who were trigger happy when a covey of [illegible] flushed. Both missed me [illegible] the birds in the order named. So I would like to add a postcript: "Never go hunting with a female. She may be [illegible] out for a pheasant."

As I grow older and read the newspapers about such traged[illegible] as the William Woodward case I feel sure my grandfather knew what he was talking about. Anyway, in his day the women in our set did the cooking and housework and never thought of going to India to bag a tiger or Long Island to shoot a husband.

Why your child needs your help when pimples strike

by MARCELLA HOLMES
NOTED BEAUTY AUTHORITY
(former Beauty Editor of 6 major magazines)

Of all the mail that reaches a beauty editor's desk, there is none so urgent as letters from adolescent girls with pimples. That's why I want to alert mothers to the double dangers of this problem. Specialists warn that pimples undermine poise and self-confidence, can cause permanent damage to a child's personality. And everyone knows that acne-type pimples, if neglected, can cause permanent scars on the skin.

Is there a way you can help your child? Yes, thanks to CLEARASIL, a medicated formulation especially for pimples. In actual clinical tests, CLEARASIL brought positive relief in a high percentage of cases.

Greaseless, fast-drying, antiseptic . . . CLEARASIL dries pimples surprisingly fast. Ends embarrassment almost immediately because CLEARASIL, a skin-colored, hides pimples as it works. Must work for you as it did in clinical tests or money back. Only 69¢ and $1.19 at all druggists.

Speaks on Television

Pearson Tells Queen, Eden Impressions of Soviet Trip

LONDON (CP) — Globe-trotting L. B. Pearson talked Monday about his travels privately to the Queen and Prime Minister Eden, publicly to Britain's vast television audience.

In a whirlwind wind-up to his London visit the Canadian external affairs minister was received in audience by the Queen at Buckingham Palace, and later had a talk with Premier Eden at 10 Downing street.

It was learned both the Queen and Sir Anthony asked questions about Pearson's six-week visit to Russia and some 10 other countries.

Later, while his Ottawa-bound aircraft was being made ready at Logdon airport for the last lap of the trip, Pearson hurried to a taxi stand to appear on a television program.

In answer to questions about the "Geneva spirit" he said the free world shouldn't be "too discouraged" that more progress has not been made in the current Big Four foreign ministers' talks at Geneva.

On NATO, he said he feels "very strongly that nothing that has happened in the last six months, no change of atmosphere or spirit, should be allowed to justify any weakening in our support of NATO."

He guarded his replies to questions on his recent talks with Russian leaders. He said, however, that he "certainly got an indication" in Moscow that some difficulties would confront East and West in their attempts to translate the spirit of Geneva into concrete results.

Northern Radar Defers to Ducks

OTTAWA (CP)—Ducks and geese forced a change in location plans of some radar sites along the mid-Canada warning line, it was learned Monday.

Stations had to be shifted at a few points along the south shore of Hudson bay. They were moved two or three miles from their original locations.

Officials gave this explanation:

The points selected for the original sites happened to be close to the nesting areas of huge flocks of ducks and geese. The sites were chosen near the shore to simplify the problem of moving equipment into them.

But it was found that when the birds made a mass takeoff they would ring an alarm along the mid-Canada line as if they were a flight of enemy bombers.

The engineers started over again. They then found that the birds were sufficiently dispersed after flying two or three miles from their bases that they did not have the same effect on the electronic equipment that will go into the line. So the radar sites were moved two or three miles.

Canadian scientists had trouble developing electronic gear for the line which will distinguish between planes and flocks of birds. However, this problem now has been overcome, officials said.

Wheelbarrow Taken, Woman Tells Police

A $30 wheelbarrow was stolen from her home, Mrs. M. King, 1757 Bank, told city police yesterday.

Power Fails In Edmonton

EDMONTON (BUP) — Thousands of residents here sat down to cold suppers tonight as a fire and explosion in a 30,000-kilowatt transformer and cables at the city power plant plunged a great part of the city into darkness.

No one was reported injured in the explosion and fire.

The power failure came at the rush hour and left thousands of homeward-bound workers stranded on street corners as the power to the trolley coaches was cut off.

Police and fire department switchboards were swamped with calls.

Firemen were called to fight a fire among cables in the basement of the plant. Power plant officials could give no estimate of the damage, and power was still off in some sections two hours after the fire.

Planes Find No Survivors

Saanich Council Delays Library Referendum Action

Action to hold a referendum this year to determine the extent of Saanich participation in the Victoria Public Library was delayed last night.

Reeve Joseph Casey told council: "I don't think anything can be done about putting it to a referendum because we have nothing to put."

The question may be reopened at the next council meeting after the library board has met and clarified its proposal.

There would still be time to call for a referendum.

Saanich now pays about $50,000 a year for library service. It collects about $20,000 from subscribers and $30,000 roughly one mill, from general revenue.

Saanich has no vote on the library board.

[illegible] that the current contract with the library be terminated this year and the required one-year notice be given so that next year a change in the contract could be negotiated.

"That is just plain business," he said.

But he was opposed by Coun. Leslie Passmore, who said: "We don't want to put ourselves in the position of being cut off without any library service. After all, we get $40,000 worth of service from them."

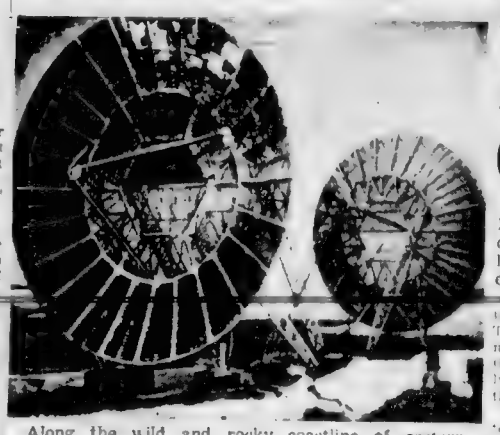
Coun. Passmore suggested a referendum be put to ratepayers this year asking: "Are you in favor of the municipality becoming a part owner of the present Victoria library?"

Reeve Casey objected: "We don't want to become a part owner if Oak Bay and Esquimalt don't come in. We don't want to buy their shares," he said.

Some of the color slides accepted for the 15th Victoria International Salon of Photography will be exhibited at 9 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday in the Norfolk Galleries, Fort and Broad.

The slides will be shown by Bernie Evans, color chairman of the Victoria Camera Club.

Canada's Arctic Sentinels



Along the wild and rocky coastline of eastern Canada's sub-Arctic, these antennae, looking like giant saucers, stare into the sky, picking up messages in a relay system probably unique in the world. The antennae are part of the continental defence system and are installed and manned by Canadians. They are unique inasmuch as formerly the waves picked up were broadcast for no farther than 30 miles. Now, with what is called "tropho sheric scatter" micro-wave transmission, messages can be sent with clarity for hundreds of miles. The antennae are being installed as part of the Mid-Canada early warning radar line. (Central Press Canadian)

Lying Helps Careers

LONDON, Ont. (BUP) — Novelists, ambassadors, and children are pretty good liars, according to an eminent Toronto psychologist.

[illegible] the Institute of Child Study in Toronto, told the Alpha Kappa medical fraternity Saturday that there are four kinds of lying and no one escapes them all.

He said when a person wants to tell someone something he sometimes twists the facts so that it will be interesting enough for an audience. Children are good at this. However Dr. Blatz said if a person becomes really adept at it he may become a novelist or a poet.

Turning to another kind of liar, the psychologist said when a wife buys a new hat and her husband tells her, "It's lovely," or when someone spills a cocktail on a person and he says, "Think nothing of it," that's lovely lying and a person can get pretty good at it after a while.

"If you become really skilled they make you an ambassador," he said.

However Dr. Blatz warned that you can not lie all your life and be excused for it. He said the lie of self preservation is par[illegible] says. He said that is the time when you have to avoid the consequences of your act.

Antarctica Trip Opens Expedition

LONDON (CP) — A white-painted Canadian ship [illegible] screaming-lipped sloops down the world's [illegible] Dundee [illegible] night heading for Antarctica. She carried the vanguard of the British Commonwealth's main [illegible] month three year exploration which aims to [illegible] 000 miles up by way of the South Pole.

The tiny Theron an 849-ton Halifax-based Canadian sealer dogs in crates on the deck to was specially chosen as one of ease their discomfort when the the few ships ever built which Theron crosses the equator. could withstand the crushing strength of the polar ice packs when winter locks.

We've just received a card from the auditors of [illegible] World Championships, in which we were told that West opened the question, was what is the correct opening lead? We haven't seen the rest of the cards, and we don't know what the result of the poll of experts will be, but we're willing to take a chance that the [illegible] would be ace.

[illegible] to the opening lead from any hand of this kind, including a singleton ace of trumps is the case of [illegible]. One such experience was when a clever declarer persuaded partner to cover an honor and play the king of spades on the first trick so he could ruff the ace. The other experience was when we got caught in just such an endplay as [illegible].

Suppose West starts the hand with the ♠A and then leads the ♠Q. Declarer ruffs and leads a club because he can't tell from the West [illegible] whether East has the ♣A or West has the ♣K. Another club permits declarer to trump while discarding a heart from dummy and he has success of the diamond finesse makes the slam. A heart lead permits declarer to guess the heart situation and avoid a heart loser. Finally, a trump lets declarer win the trick with the queen and reel off the rest of the trumps with fatal results for West. On the [illegible] lead West must realize that the hearts of [illegible] will [illegible] on dummy's remaining diamonds.

But if West gets out of the way by leading the ace of spades, declarer can't manage to make his slam. West gets out at the second trick by leading the king of clubs. Now south can't get more than two diamond tricks if he leads the suit himself and the squeeze fails. West is [illegible] to keep all seven red cards and [illegible] and a diamond [illegible] with the lead in the [illegible].

Next time, [illegible] lead and hold a blank ace of trumps think about leading it. Among other advantages, it lets you get a look at dummy before you launch out into the blind.

Cold Cuts Attendance

City Symphony Orchestra Plays to Near-Empty House

BY BRUCE LOWTHER

Cold weather was responsible for the smallest audience in Victoria Symphony Orchestra history at the Royal theatre Sunday.

Only 361 persons turned out to hear music conducted by Clifford Evens. Only 1,000 more braved the cold last night making less than a full house for the two performances.

Most popular item with the audience was the group of selections from Tschaikovsky's "Swan Lake" ballet.

Deserved bows were taken by violinist and acting concert mistress Carol McCartney, lead cellist Mary Hammond, harpist Lorna [illegible] and Dr. George Green.

Because of the excellent emphasis they gave to the ballet music, percussionists Frank Motts and Agnes Bean should have been singled out for attention.

Praise for the orchestra's performance of the ballet must not detract from the presentation of Mozart's sprightly "Marriage of Figaro" overture or the "Polka and Fugue" from Schwanda the Bagpiper," both of which were thoroughly enjoyed.

After the intermission the orchestra excelled itself in portrayal of the moods and efforts drawn by Beethoven in his seventh or "Dance" symphony.

Throughout the concert performance, especially in the emotional struggle which Mr. Evens portrayed on stage, the orchestra succeeded in meeting every difficult challenge.

Next concert, Dec. 4 and 5, include Brahms' "Tragic Overture," the group of "Appalachian Spring" by Aaron Copland and Beethoven's "Emperor" concerto featuring pianist Gaby Casadesus.

Warrant Issued For Star

LOS ANGELES (CP)—A bench warrant was ordered yesterday for screen star Lana Turner after she failed to appear in superior court in a $18,000 civil suit.

The blonde actress and her husband actor Lex Barker were subpoenaed to testify on how much they owed Texas oil promoter J. Robert Neal who is being sued by oil engineer Robert L. Daniels for $18,000.

Superior Judge Arthur K. Marshall ordered the warrant drawn against Miss Turner but indicated it would not be used if the actress appears at a hearing Nov. 28.

Miss Turner, her husband and a number of other stars including Esther Williams, Donna Reed, Dean Martin and Tony Owen were reported to have purchased participating interests in oil properties in Texas from Neal. Miss Turner had filed a statement denying she owed Neal any money but was subpoenaed to testify at the hearing. No warrant was ordered against Barker.

Actor Brings Own Guest To Official Luncheon

WASHINGTON (CP)—Movie actor Marlon Brando brought his own feminine guest to a measure department luncheon in his honor Monday. She was Rita Moreno, Puerto Rican government girl he met at the dining room door.

Artist Flays Critic Of Modern 'Blobs'

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Canadian-born artist flew in from New York and into Winnipeg's current art controversy during the weekend.

Roloff Beny, [illegible] of Medicine Hat, Alta., and one of Canada's most successful painters, said Mrs. Wood Wrenes, one of the sponsors of an art Canada show at the Winnipeg Art Gallery, who sparked the controversy, was "just dead."

Mrs. Wrenes threatened to withdraw her support of the gallery after viewing the selections of the judges for the current juried show. She described the paintings as "nauseating blobs."

Mr. Beny said the kind of art Mrs. Wrenes would show a sort of Edwardian romanticism was superseded by the Negro and the Eskimo.

She probably succumbs to Canada's most appalling phenomenon in America today," he said in an interview.

Mr. Beny said he was impressed with the west.

"It's one of the most stimulating places I have seen in Canada," he said.

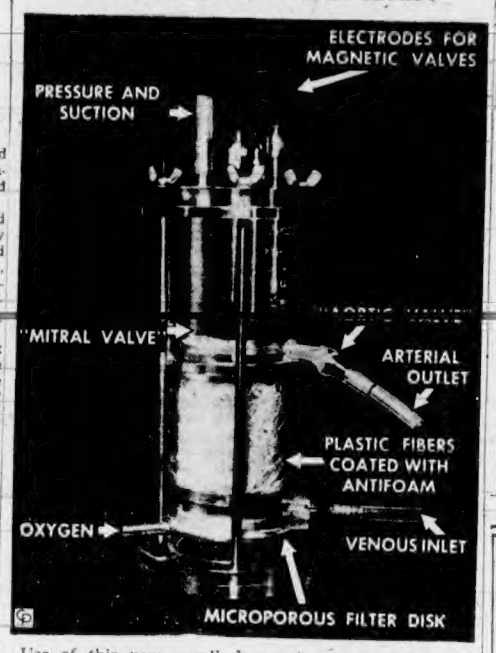
Pocket-Size Artificial Heart



Use of this new, small, low-cost oxygen pump on humans is "imminent," according to Dr. Frank Gollan of the Veterans administration hospital in Nashville, Tenn. The pump, developed by VA doctors and the Selas corporation of America, has been used exclusively for heart action during 500 animal heart operations. It isn't much larger than a water glass, can be operated by one person and can be transported easily in a car. Previous similar machines have been large, complicated electronic devices costing thousands. This one costs about $250.—(Central Press Canadian.)

Long Johns Must Be Local

By RICHARD HUGHES

TOKYO (NANA)—The businessmen couldn't have been more embarrassed if they'd been caught on Tokyo's main street at high noon wearing only their long underwear.

Almost that very thing has happened to a sizable number of well-to-do Japanese men, and charges of "unpatriotism" have resulted. If the Society of Tokyo Haberdashers has its way, a standard question in any Japanese loyalty interrogations might be, "Where did you get your underwear?"

In an effort to spur buying of "Made-in-Japan" goods, the society issued a report on national underwear-wearing habits among men. First on the expose list was former prime minister Shigeru Yoshida, who was reported to pay up to $85 for made-to-order sets of woollen underpants and undershirts — all Japanese-made. Another flags-flying leader of the patriotic-underwear faction, the society went on, is Taketora Ogata. Yoshida's successor as leader of the liberal party.

Many businessmen, however, were accused of buying [illegible] lush garments made of camel's hair and costing as much as $200.

This may be cosy, but it's "not so patriotic," declared the society.

Better Deal in Store for B.C. On Trans-Canada Road Costs

A better deal for B.C. in the matter of Trans-Canada Highway construction costs was forecast yesterday by Premier W. A. C. Bennett on the heels of reports from Ottawa that:

1. Under a new formula the federal authority will pay 90 per cent of cost of construction of gaps which constitute up to 10 per cent of the total trans-Canada mileage within a province;

2. Provinces would decide on which gaps they wished to have the 90 per cent formula applied.

Provincial authorities met in [illegible] of a two-day conference with federal officials.

"Reports from Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi indicate that we will have, at least, a better arrangement as far as sharing the costs than we have at present," the premier said.

At the same time he scored the federal government over the present cost-sharing formula.

"It is our contention that each province should pay the same per mile of the highway," Premier Bennett said. "It's unfair that this province, because of its mountains and rain, should have to pay a higher price a mile."

The federal government now pays 50 per cent of the costs of construction with the other 50 per cent being paid by indi[illegible]

"The federal government has never paid 50 per cent in practice," the premier said. "They only pay in theory. They haven't paid for right-of-way property, or the third lane up a hill when it is needed. The federal government share only comes to about 40 per cent."

He added that B.C. needed not just one major trans-provincial highway but five, and these are being built.

"We're building five so the federal government should pay the lion's share of the national highway," the premier said.

Ottawa Tells of Plan To Fill Highway Gaps

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government came up Monday with a new financial formula to speed the closing of gaps in the 4,600-mile Trans-Canada Highway and make a hard-surfaced coast-to-coast road a reality by 1960.

Works Minister Winters announced at the opening of a federal-provincial highways conference that his government is ready, under certain conditions, to pay 90 per cent of the cost of construction of vital links in a paved highway from St. John's, Nfld., to Victoria.

The works minister also proposed:

1. Renewal until 1960 of the Trans-Canada Highways agreement — now operative with all provinces except Quebec — providing for a 50-50 split on highway costs. The dollar-for-dollar split would continue in the new agreement on all work other than that to which the 90 per cent formula applied. The agreement expires in December next year.

2. The scrapping on its expiry in December, 1956, of the agreement provision by which the federal government pays half the cost of all "prior construction" — roads built originally between 1928 and December, 1949, which were later earmarked as highway links.

Cranes Win Battle for Life

OTTAWA (CP)—The whooping crane—the big, white bird distinguished by its black wing-tips—has won another round in its battle against extinction.

The northern affairs department reported Monday that known world population of the heron-like birds has risen to 28 from 21 in 1954. Their numbers sank to an all-time low of 15 in 1941, rose slowly to 24 in 1953 and declined again to 21 last year.

The number which reached the Aransas national wildlife refuge in Texas is 10 more than the 18 known to have taken off this fall from breeding grounds in Wood Buffalo National Park in the Northwest Territories.

The department said the birds which survived the hazardous 3,000-mile flight from their northern nesting grounds, straddling the Alberta and Northwest Territories border, include 20 adults and eight young.

Two sets of twins were among the young which arrived in Texas. This is the first time since 1939-40 that a double set of twins has survived the long journey.

The 21 birds which arrived in Texas in the fall of 1954 from northern Canada all were adults. This means, the department said, that one adult bird still is missing. However, the department has received no reports of casualties.

Scientist Looks Ahead To Mentally-Ill Machine

WASHINGTON (UP)—A British scientist said Monday an artificial brain may be perfected some day that will make mistakes and suffer mental breakdowns just like its human counterpart.

Dr. D. M. Mackay of the University of London said the true model of the brain must be so constructed that it can grow, can profit by its own experience, and can suffer mental breakdowns on the same principles as the human brain.

He said that it already is possible to design an artificial brain that will incorporate in itself patterns due to its own internal and external experiences.

Dr. Mackay made the statements in the annual report of the Smithsonian Institution.

There is one possible model which he thinks might stand comparison with the human brain. Its basic feature is the ability to adjust the rules of its own activity according to its degree of success.

Time for a QUICK PICK-UP

You don't argue with a locomotive. So a manufacturer of rail equipment has developed a lightweight rail inspection car that carries four people yet can be taken off the track by one man.

Since men who design rail cars, aircraft and other transportation equipment regularly use aluminum to cut down dead weight and increase pay load, it is no surprise that aluminum was used to replace heavier materials in many parts of this inspection car. The person who will be surprised is the locomotive engineer who first sees a rail inspector nonchalantly—and single-handedly—hoisting his scooter from the track.

Victims of Sea Reach Last Harbor

Bodies of three Vancouver fishermen, lost when their 55-foot fish boat Westerner foundered in Friday's storm, were brought to Victoria last night for identification. A fourth member of Westerner's crew is missing. Here RCMP officers and RCAF crewmen bring one of dead ashore from crash boat which went to wreck on Saturna Island yesterday, about 15 miles east of Sidney.

Fourth Man Missing

Three Fishermen Perish In Storm-Wrecked Seiner

Grisly Discovery On Saturna Island

Three Vancouver fishermen, who died apparently while seeking shelter from the worst November storm on the B.C. coast in 44 years, were found yesterday in the ice-shrouded wreckage of their 55-foot seiner on Saturna Island.

A fourth man, believed to be from Vancouver, is still missing.

The three bodies were found in the flooded forward hold of the Westerner, which the seas had pushed onto a wedge of rocks on the storm-swept northeastern shore of the island, one mile south of Boat pass. RCMP brought the bodies here.

Although identification was impossible last night, reports from Vancouver said the missing men were Marian Govarchin, the 54-year-old owner of the vessel; Bob Suica, about 60; Joe Martinic and Ed Jones.

ANOTHER VICTIM

A few hours after the storm broke Friday, body of Masaichi Mukuyana, 57-year-old Japanese fisherman of Surrey, was found in his swamped boat off Ladner.

The Westerner was sighted at 9.30 a.m. yesterday by Jim Money and Don Bellamy, Saturna Island residents, who were going to their road construction jobs.

They teamed with other civilians, an RCMP constable and RCAF personnel in the Gulf islands crashboat to set up planks so they could board the vessel.

Deck of the seiner was coated with ice. Wheelhouse and hull were stove in. Interior of the vessel was filled with water and smashed timbers.

A piece of seaweed on the mast indicated the boat may have overturned in heavy seas, drowning the three men inside and sweeping the man at the wheel to his death. Later, the Westerner apparently righted itself.

The Westerner usually carries a crew of six. When caught in Georgia strait by the storm, she was likely headed for shelter beyond Active Pass.

The air force crashboat and a vessel owned by B.C. Packers, with whom Mr. Govorchin was affiliated, will go to the scene today to continue the search for the fourth body.

A skiff located by an RCAF Canso aircraft on Tumbo Island, near the scene of the wreck, is believed to be from the Westerner.

It was learned that the ship's lights were on, the clutch was engaged and the radio was tuned to the distress band. Clothing worn by the men indicated the tragedy occurred at night.

Last of the bodies was removed after four hours of probing through the wreckage and the crash boat brought the bodies to Sidney. They were later brought here.

Arrangements are in the hands of Sands' Funeral Home, Sidney. An inquest will be held.

MISSING MAN SAFE

Meanwhile, Victoria fisherman Mervin Reid of Discovery Island and his 32-foot gillnetter Kenneth, given up for lost in the storm, turned up safely at Patos Island light station in Juan de Fuca Strait. A U.S. Coast Guard vessel will tow the Kenneth to Bellingham tomorrow.

Fires and traffic accidents blamed on the cold wave on the B.C. Mainland took nine other lives and left 18 persons homeless.

Area Police Seek Hit-Run Driver

Police of the metropolitan area were hunting last night for a hit-and-run driver who left a badly injured boy lying on the roadside.

James Isacson, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Isacson, Millstream road, was hit about 5.30 p.m. last night on the Island highway near Colwood corner.

The boy was riding his bicycle towards Colwood corner with a load of groceries when he was struck.

Two minutes later an RCMP patrol car noticed the boy sprawled on the roadway.

He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital with a leg fracture, where his condition at midnight was reported as good.

Snow-Laden but Warmer

Cold Wave Could Break Tomorrow As New Pacific Storm Moves In

Victoria's worst November cold wave since the weather office began to keep records 56 years ago may break tomorrow.

A "very active" storm coming from the Gulf of Alaska should bring snow flurries and warmer temperatures to the north B.C. coast this morning, to the west coast of Vancouver Island this afternoon, and possibly to Victoria tonight and tomorrow.

That would be none too soon for battered citizens who, since temperatures dropped Friday, have gone to city hospitals in record numbers or spent most of their time and money worrying and working on frozen automobiles.

Victoria weather forecaster William Mackie said "about a storm a day" is coming from the north Pacific, but all have passed south of here. New one may bring six or eight inches of snow to the north coast, with serious icing, but "it looks as if it will break the cold wave."

"LOOKS GOOD"

"We'll know the effect on the south coast Tuesday," he said last night. "But it looks quite good."

Mr. Mackie said Victoria went through five-day November cold waves in 1900 and 1911, but temperatures seldom dropped below 20 degrees. Minimum readings since Friday have been 12.5 degrees Saturday, 14.7 Sunday, 12.8 yesterday and a forecast record low of 12 this morning.

It was an unofficial six above at Langford last night.

All-time low temperature here was 6.4 degrees in February, 1950.

In the Pacific, 900 miles west-northwest of Victoria, temperatures at the weathership have varied little from 45 degrees, as a result of the passing storms.

Nurses in emergency wards of city hospitals stopped trying to keep a running count of the number of injuries suffered in "cold wave" accidents, most of them falls on icy sidewalks.

FRACTURES, FROSTBITE

Between Friday morning and last night, approximately 75 persons had been treated for fractured legs, arms and shoulders; frostbite, burns to face or hands from overheated stoves, head cuts, and lacerations and bruises.

Six children were cut in sleighing accidents. In most cases sleighs ran into cars. One boy needed 17 stitches to close a head cut.

Delivery delays of fuel dealers lengthened, and plumbers worked sometimes around the clock. Householders were advised to leave a tap slightly open to avert frozen pipes.

As private citizens reported thermometer readings as low as 4 degrees Sunday, Esquimalt firemen flooded the lacrosse box near Fraser street hall for a skating rink.

Sections of the Inner harbor, Panama flats and other areas were icy, but all police forces said conditions were "far too dangerous for skating," while adding that no hills had been blocked off for sleighing.

Acting city engineer J. C. Garnett reminded property owners that they are responsible for clearing ice from sidewalks in front of their businesses or homes.

He recommended bulk salt or powdered rock salt after clearing. His standing crews covered all major roads and usual trouble spots with more than 100 cubic yards of clean, washed sand, being used for the first time.

Although it becomes glazed over and seems to disappear, Mr. Garnett said, it works satisfactorily. Saanich crews spread 200 yards of sand; Oak Bay workers more than 60 yards.

All main roads on the Island are sanded and open to traffic, although the Malahat is still ice-soaked. Patricia Bay highway from Keating hill to Royal Oak was described as "very tricky."

Two schools were closed at Nanaimo as up-Island temperatures fell to 8 degrees and light snow fell on many areas. On the mainland, three Fraser valley schools were closed.

The "big freeze" may destroy 1,000 tons of potatoes, 100 tons of turnips and 5,500 tons of carrots in the Fraser valley, causing temporary shortages. Officials expected trouble in Okanagan soft fruit orchards.

Low temperature of 10 at Vancouver was a November record, but well above the all-time minimum of zero there Jan. 14, 1950. Low at Kelowna was four below zero, lowest in 55 years.

Saanich Growth May Boost Staff

A plan to reorganize Saanich municipal staff, creating a permanent comptroller-treasurer and waterworks engineer, will be put before council in January.

Coun. George Austin proposed last night that municipal clerk John Tribe be promoted to the position of comptroller-treasurer, assistant clerk Gordon Hayward be made municipal clerk and a new assistant be hired.

Coun. S. W. Brock said in addition the municipality should hire a full-time waterworks engineer, and place the responsibility for subdivision in the hands of the Capital Region Planning Board "where it belongs."

Both councillors felt Saanich's growth warranted expansion of the staff because it was now "big business."

Reeve Joseph Casey suggested no changes be made until January. Coun. Austin will make a notice of motion for the reorganization to be put before the new 1956 council.

Catholic Women Start Purifying Newsstands

TORONTO (CP)—The Catholic Women's League drive to purify Ontario newsstands got under way Monday amid mixed reaction.

The league said most newsdealers were co-operative and encouraging. Authors were highly critical, distributors' spokesmen were critical, and other opinions ranged from misgiving to approval.

About 1,000 specially-trained observers, mostly housewives, started out to check dealers' books and periodicals against a list of 300 books blacklisted by the National Organization of Decent Literature of Chicago.

Any listed books which an observer found on a newsstand was pointed out to the dealer and he was asked to return it to the distributor.

Mrs. W. J. McDonald, league publicity convener, said:

"Most of our people are treated with courtesy. Most dealers agreed with our campaign and asked for a list."

"MISGUIDED," SAYS AUTHOR

But two Toronto authors criticized the drive.

Author Lister Sinclair said: "It's impertinent."

Author Morley Callaghan said:

"They're terribly misguided . . . Not one woman in 10,000 will have any personal awareness of the thing she is damning. Any book could be put on her secret list and she would know nothing about it. She would condemn it on someone else's word."

Sinclair said: "They are entitled not to read books if they don't like them, or they may advise others not to read them. But they are not entitled to prevent other people from reading them.

Investigation Urged

Church-State Split May Be House Issue

LONDON (Reuters)—Pressure mounted Monday night in Britain for an investigation into possible separation of church and state.

A clergyman speaking in St. Paul's Cathedral here Sunday, questioned the right of British prime ministers, who need not even be Christians, to have a decisive voice in the nomination of Church of England bishops.

Two newspapers of different political affiliations applauded Canon George L. Lloyd for proposing the freeing of the church from state controls.

AIRED IN PARLIAMENT

The entire problem may come before Parliament today. Labor member Stephen Swingler said he will ask Prime Minister Eden to set up a commission to investigate church-state relations and the question of whether Britain should continue to have a state church.

The problems created by an established church were dramatically pinpointed by Princess Margaret's decision not to wed Group Capt. Peter Townsend in view of the church's attitude to his divorce.

Swingler wants to know from the government how far the church's status as a state institution accords with the ideals and desires of the majority of the British people.

Canon Lloyd provided new ammunition to the explosive controversy in questioning the role of prime ministers in church matters.

In accord with constitutional practice, the sovereign, head of the church, nominates bishops of the Church of England on the advice of the prime minister.

IN DELICATE POSITION

This places Eden in a delicate position since he, like Townsend, was the "innocent party" of a divorce. Eden wed his second wife, Clarissa, niece of Sir Winston Churchill, in a civil ceremony.

Yet, if the question of disestablishing the Church of England from the state ever arose, Eden would, as Queen Elizabeth's first minister, be in the position of having to advise her what to do. This would be possibly in the face of opposing views from the primate of all England, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

The Star, a Liberal London evening newspaper, declared: "We are glad the canon has given the church a lead. We shall be even more pleased if the Archbishop of Canterbury comes out in his support."

Disestablishment is the only logical outcome, The Star said, if the church cannot make its laws conform to those of the state.

Africa Cuts Final Tie With UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—South Africa cut its final tie with the 10th UN General Assembly Monday in protest against a UN decision to hear Rev. Michael Scott.

Scott is an Anglican missionary who has been barred since 1951 from the Territory of Southwest Africa by a ruling of the South African government. The trusteeship committee of the assembly last week voted to hear him give evidence about Southwest Africa, over which South Africa was given control originally under a League of Nations mandate.

South Africa recalled its delegation from the assembly last week because of a vote by the special political committee to continue an investigation into South African race policies.

Russia Rings Down Solid Iron Curtain To Keep Out Ideas

By DANIEL de LUCE

GENEVA (AP) — Foreign Minister Molotov announced Monday Russia's refusal to remove the Iron Curtain barring free exchange of ideas with the West.

The Russian accused the three Western foreign ministers of submitting proposals that would open his country to "freedom for war propaganda . . . freedom for unrestricted subversive propaganda."

In tough language, Molotov gave the Western ministers to understand that the barriers of the Soviet bloc will long continue, regardless of relaxation of East-West tensions.

"We do not conceal the fact," he said, "that in the Soviet Union, neither before nor hereafter, will such freedom for the exchange of ideas be afforded which would, in fact, represent freedom for the propaganda of war and misanthropic propaganda of atomic attack.

"Nor can we agree, of course, to the so-called freedom for the exchange of persons, which would enable various dregs of society to conduct unrestricted subversive activity in the countries of socialism and democracy, although, as we know, many millions of dollars are being spent for these purposes."

U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, speaking after Molotov, warned the Russians against dumping their surplus Second World War arms on world markets. At the same time, he accused them of being afraid to permit contact between the Soviet people and the West.

Stunned by Molotov's refusal to permit a free flow of news and ideas across the Iron Curtain, Dulles said the Soviets fear their totalitarian system would be undermined if their people knew of the liberty and economic abundance in free nations.

The Soviet foreign minister counter-attacked with a warning to the West to quit "meddling" in Russia's internal affairs.

This brought forth a pointed warning from Dulles that Moscow's "persistent campaign which distorts the minds of the Russian" people is a danger to peace with the West.

Cypriots Fire Rocks At British Soldiers

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—Men of a mountain village advanced behind a "wall of women" to stone British commandos Monday in one of the worst days of island-wide rioting since the Greek Cypriots' struggle for union with Greece began.

At the entrance to Vouni village in central Cyprus a crowd of women met the commandos with screams, curses and a shower of stones. Men massed behind them also were flinging stones.

The struggle was decided by tear gas. Military authorities clamped a rigorous house curfew on the village.

A 40-year-old woman, injured by tear gas shell splinters, was taken to Limassol hospital, 20 miles away. Nine other villagers, mostly women, were injured by tear gas shells.

Some of the incidents were believed to have been sparked by the rejection Saturday of an appeal by Michael Karaolis, 22, sentenced to death for the murder of a Nicosia policeman.

In Nicosia, students with a vanguard of screaming girls in school uniforms converged on police and troops surrounding a secondary school. Hiding behind trees and boulders around the building, the youngsters pitched stones and bottles at the troops and police.

Tear gas again came into play.

'Captive Audience' Suit

Keep Preachers Out of Jail Convict Demands in Court

SEATTLE (AP)—A unique trial in which a county jail prisoner contends a "captive audience" of prisoners should not have to listen to religious services opened in court here Monday.

The suit was instituted by William Harvey Rhea, a 25-year-old roofer serving a year's sentence for vagrancy and assault, and is against 19 religious organizations.

Rhea is seeking to require the King county sheriff and the jail superintendent to enforce a rule which limits religious services to the jail's chapel.

The religious groups are asking that the court prohibit jail officials from interfering with the services they now conduct in jail corridors.

Rhea said he got headaches and became nervous after groups of religious workers had conducted hour-long services.

"There is no way we can get away," Rhea said. "There is no place to go. I believe in God. I believe that when the time comes, I can do it (be saved) myself, and only myself."

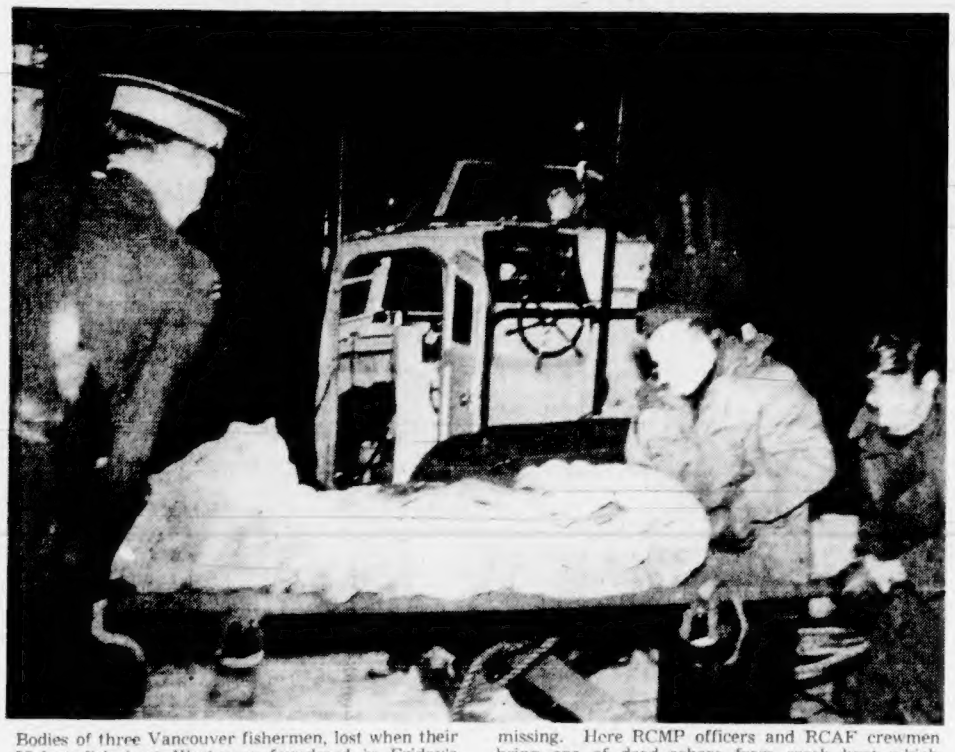
THREE FISHERMEN PERISH NEAR ISLAND

Victims of Sea Reach Last Harbor



Bodies of three Vancouver fishermen, lost when their 55-foot fish boat Westerner foundered in Friday's storm, were brought to Victoria last night for identification. A fourth member of Westerner's crew is missing. Here RCMP officers and RCAF crewmen bring one of dead ashore from crash boat which went to wreck on Saturna Island yesterday, about 15 miles east of Sidney.

Saturna Tragedy

Three Vancouver fishermen, who died apparently while seeking shelter from the worst November storm on the B.C. coast in 44 years, were found yesterday in the ice-shrouded wreckage of their 55-foot seiner on Saturna Island.

A fourth man, believed to be from Vancouver, is still missing.

The three bodies were found in the flooded forward hold of the Westerner, which the seas had pushed onto a wedge of rocks on the storm-swept northeastern shore of the island, one mile south of Boat pass. RCMP brought the bodies here.

Although identification was impossible last night, reports from Vancouver said the missing men were Marian Govarchin, the 54-year-old owner of the vessel; Bob Suica, about 60; Joe Martinic and Ed Jones.

The Westerner usually carries a crew of six. When caught in Georgia strait by the storm, she was likely headed for shelter beyond Active Pass.

The air force crashboat and a vessel owned by B.C. Packers, with whom Mr. Govorchin was affiliated, will go to the scene today to continue the search for the fourth body.

A skiff located by an RCAF Canso aircraft on Tumbo Island, near the scene of the wreck, is believed to be from the Westerner.

It was learned that the ship's lights were on, the clutch was engaged and the radio was tuned to the distress band. Clothing worn by the men indicated the tragedy occurred at night.

Last of the bodies was removed after four hours of probing through the wreckage and the crash boat brought the bodies to Sidney. They were later brought here.

Arrangements are in the hands of Sands' Funeral Home, Sidney. An inquest will be held.

MISSING MAN SAFE

Meanwhile, Victoria fisherman Mervin Reid of Discovery Island and his 32-foot gillnetter Kenneth, given up for lost in the storm, turned up safely at Patos Island light station in Juan de Fuca Strait. A U.S. Coast Guard vessel will tow the Kenneth to Bellingham tomorrow.

Fires and traffic accidents blamed on the cold wave on the B.C. Mainland took nine other lives and left 18 persons homeless.

ANOTHER VICTIM

A few hours after the storm broke Friday, body of Masaichi Mukuyana, 57-year-old Japanese fisherman of Surrey, was found in his swamped boat off Ladner.

The Westerner was sighted at 9.30 a.m. yesterday by Jim Money and Don Bellamy, Saturna Island residents, who were going to their road construction jobs.

They teamed with other civilians, an RCMP constable and RCAF personnel in the Gulf islands crashboat to set up planks so they could board the vessel.

Deck of the seiner was coated with ice. Wheelhouse and hull were stove in. Interior of the vessel was filled with water and smashed timbers.

A piece of seaweed on the mast indicated the boat may have overturned in heavy seas, drowning the three men inside and sweeping the man at the wheel to his death. Later, the Westerner apparently righted itself.

Area Police Seek Hit-Run Driver

Police of the metropolitan area were hunting last night for a hit-and-run driver who left a badly injured boy lying on the roadside.

James Isacson, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Isacson, Millstream road, was hit about 5.30 p.m. last night on the Island highway near Colwood corner.

The boy was riding his bicycle towards Colwood corner with a load of groceries when he was struck.

Two minutes later an RCMP patrol car noticed the boy sprawled on the roadway.

He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital with a leg fracture, where his condition at midnight was reported as good.

Snow-Laden but Warmer

Cold Wave Could Break Tomorrow As New Pacific Storm Moves In

Victoria's worst November cold wave since the weather office began to keep records 56 years ago may break tomorrow.

A "very active" storm coming from the Gulf of Alaska should bring snow flurries and warmer temperatures to the north B.C. coast this morning, to the west coast of Vancouver Island this afternoon, and possibly to Victoria tonight and tomorrow.

That would be none too soon for battered citizens who, since temperatures dropped Friday, have gone to city hospitals in record numbers or spent most of their time and money worrying and working on frozen automobiles.

Victoria weather forecaster William Mackie said "about a storm a day" is coming from the north Pacific, but all have passed south of here. New one may bring six or eight inches of snow to the north coast, with serious icing, but "it looks as if it will break the cold wave."

"LOOKS GOOD"

"We'll know the effect on the south coast Tuesday," he said last night. "But it looks quite good."

Mr. Mackie said Victoria went through five-day November cold waves in 1900 and 1911, but temperatures seldom dropped below 20 degrees. Minimum readings since Friday have been 12.5 degrees Saturday, 14.7 Sunday, 12.8 yesterday and a forecast record low of 12 this morning.

It was an unofficial six above at Langford last night.

All-time low temperature here was 6.4 degrees in February, 1950.

In the Pacific, 900 miles west-northwest of Victoria, temperatures at the weathership have varied little from 45 degrees, as a result of the passing storms.

Nurses in emergency wards of city hospitals stopped trying to keep a running count of the number of injuries suffered in "cold wave" accidents, most of them falls on icy sidewalks.

FRACTURES, FROSTBITE

Between Friday morning and last night, approximately 75 persons had been treated for fractured legs, arms and shoulders; frostbite, burns to face or hands from overheated stoves, head cuts, and lacerations and bruises.

Six children were cut in sleighing accidents. In most cases sleighs ran into cars. One boy needed 17 stitches to close a head cut.

Delivery delays of fuel dealers lengthened, and plumbers worked sometimes around the clock. Householders were advised to leave a tap slightly open to avert frozen pipes.

As private citizens reported thermometer readings as low as 4 degrees Sunday, Esquimalt firemen flooded the lacrosse box near Fraser street hall for a skating rink.

Sections of the Inner harbor, Panama flats and other areas were icy, but all police forces said conditions were "far too dangerous for skating," while adding that no hills had been blocked off for sleighing.

Acting city engineer J. C. Garnett reminded property owners that they are responsible for clearing ice from sidewalks in front of their businesses or homes.

He recommended bulk salt or powdered rock salt after clearing. His standing crews covered all major roads and usual trouble spots with more than 100 cubic yards of clean, washed sand, being used for the first time.

Although it becomes glazed over and seems to disappear, Mr. Garnett said, it works satisfactorily. Saanich crews spread 200 yards of sand; Oak Bay workers more than 60 yards.

All main roads on the Island are sanded and open to traffic, although the Malahat is still ice-soaked. Patricia Bay highway from Keating hill to Royal Oak was described as "very tricky."

Two schools were closed at Nanaimo as up-Island temperatures fell to 8 degrees and light snow fell on many areas. On the mainland, three Fraser valley schools were closed.

The "big freeze" may destroy 1,000 tons of potatoes, 100 tons of turnips and 5,500 tons of carrots in the Fraser valley, causing temporary shortages. Officials expected trouble in Okanagan soft fruit orchards.
